LONDON, July 27.—Massive Russian forces burst through the disintegrating German battle lines at three key points along the 800-mile fighting front today and sent their armored spearheads racing ahead toward Czechoslovakia, Warsaw and the Baltic states.

Bracken Says:

Old Tory Policy Discarded For New Economic Doctrine Under Reformed Capitalism

The Edmonton Bulletin, in accordance with its well-known policy of bringing to its readers the complete text of statements of national importance made by political and financial leaders in the Dominion, is publishing in full the address given last night by John Bracken, national leader of the Progressive Conservative party, under the recently inaugurated CBC policy of granting free time to Canadian political parties. This was the first address by a member of the Progressive Conservative party under the new plan—EDITOR.

OTTAWA, July 27.—(CP)—Sounding the death knell of former Conservative party policy in favor of a revolutionary economic doctrine "of production first and profits last" based on a reformed capitalism, John Bracken, national leader of the Progressive Conservative Party, in an address last night under the new CBC plan of free time for political parties, warned that if there was failure to prepare, peace could be more terrible than war.

In a sharp attack on both the government's manpower policy and what he charged was its lack of realistic preparation for the post-war period, Mr. Bracken said the real issue before the people of Canada today is "between the reactionary capitalism we have known in the past and the reformed capitalism we may have in the future."

Total 183

2 Candidates Are Nominated By L-P. Party

Two Labor-Progressive Party nominations Wednesday night have raised the total number of candidates in the provincial election campaign to date to 183.

By parties, candidates nominated include: Social Credit, 57; CCF, 57; Independent, 36; Labor-Progressive, 29; others, 4.

Character Study Made of Premier

TORONTO, July 27.—(CP)—A brief character study of Prime Minister Mackenzie King by Emil Ludwig, biographer of Napoleon, Lincoln and Roosevelt, will be published by the MacMillan Company of Canada in connection with the 25th anniversary of Mr. King's leadership of the Liberal party.

The illustrated, 62-page volume reports the achievements of Mr. King's long public career, and seeks to assess his character. Ludwig says that the prime minister's "most outstanding talent is a power of reconciling contrary elements."

Ignoring the prime minister's boyhood, Ludwig recounts Mr. King's work as a labor mediator after he entered public life, portraying him as a lifetime champion of the worker. The author tells of Mr. King's part in world and empire affairs up to his recent address to both houses of parliament in London.

Reformed capitalism, he said, will see that the workers have the right to work so that they can earn, and thus be able to satisfy their daily needs. It will see that they have a just reward for the contribution each makes to society. It will ensure the rights of farmers, eliminate depressions and see that society will not be deprived of the right to the full use of the material rewards that science and mechanization have made it possible to produce.

Mr. Bracken said it was not the capitalist system which "sometimes brought woe to many." It was the misuse and the abuse and failure to control the system that brought trouble occasionally. "We must end all that," he said.

Such a system of reformed capitalism, Mr. Bracken said, would be the exact opposite of socialism, he continued on page 3, col. 1.

Full-Time CBC Chairman Urged

OTTAWA, July 27.—(CP)—The parliamentary radio committee, reporting to the Commons today, recommended the appointment of a full-time chairman for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation to have charge of policy, and a general manager to have charge of administration.

The committee report said: "This would not involve a dual authority, as each would have his own definite field of action, and their respective functions should not involve and conflict, and should any conflict arise, the authority of the chairman must be predominant or such matters might be referred to the board."

The committee report rejected the suggestion of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters that an impartial judicial body be established in Canada to control all radio.

Looking ahead, the committee urged that the CBC be placed in a financial position where it could keep up-to-date. "Your corporation should have appropriated by parliament to its use for these specific and other purposes sufficient monies to meet their needs, so that the general radio services of the country should be uniform."

In three triumphant orders of the day, Soviet Premier Josef Stalin announced that his armies had captured Bialystok, unhinging the Nazi defences before Warsaw and East Prussia; Stanislawow, at the Carpathian mountain gateway to Czechoslovakia, and the Latvian strongholds of Daugavpils (Dvinsk) and Rezenke, on the road to Riga and the Baltic coast.

Daugavpils and Rezenke fell before a concerted tank and infantry assault hurled against the twin bastions by units of Gen. Andrei Yerememko's 2nd Baltic Army.

Bank Charter Extensions Draw Varied Views

OTTAWA, July 27.—(CP)—W. A. Fraser, Liberal member of parliament for Northumberland, today urged the commons banking committee to extend the charter of Canadian banks for 10 years as protection against possible disruption of the Canadian banking system.

Mr. Fraser and Hon. R. B. Hanson (PC—York-Sunbury) spoke in opposition to an amendment to the bank bill by E. E. Parley (PC—Qu'Appelle) which would limit the charter extension to two years. M. J. Goldwell, CCF leader, and G. J. McGeer (L—Vancouver-Burrard) supported Mr. Parley's amendment.

Mr. McGeer took the position that in the face of an uncertain future opportunity should be given the Canadian people within the next two years to redefine the monetary and banking system. Banking had changed in recent years and would change in the future. A policy of setting a hard and fast course for the next 10 years would result in reactions from the Canadian people.

Mr. Hanson referred to a statement of Mr. Parley who said before the committee yesterday that Continued on page 2, col. 4.

HITLER'S PAPER ADMITS TRIALS HEAVIEST EVER

STOCKHOLM, July 27.—(AP)—Hitler's own Nazi party newspaper, the Voelkischer Beobachter, said today: "We openly declare that never since the beginning of the war have our nerves and hearts been exposed to heavier trials."

The Berlin newspaper made the comment in remarks on Propaganda Minister Goebbels' speech on total mobilization yesterday.

At H-Hour

Unforgettable Spectacle Witnessed by City Sailor

The spectacle from the deck of HMS Glasgow at H-Hour on D-Day is described by Able Seaman Robert Wallis, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Wallis, 10517 125 street, as: "... something unforgettable and unimaginable—spectacular beyond words."

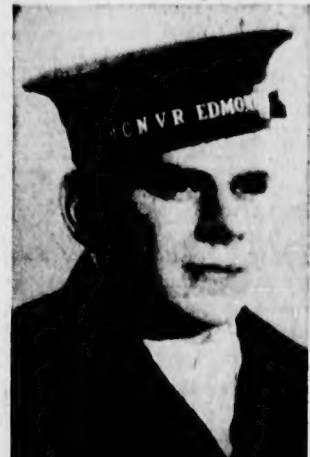

AB Wallis, a Canadian member of the crew of the famed British cruiser on "D-Day," is enjoying a well-earned leave in Britain as his ship undergoes minor repairs for superficial damage received from bomb near-misses during the invasion operations.

His father, who is proprietor of the Black and White Cabs Ltd., recently received a letter from his son describing in graphic manner the happenings on the great invasion morning of June 6.

The former Edmonton lad was obviously still thrilled by the greatest amphibious action in the world's history when he wrote the letter home some weeks after the Allied landings on the Normandy coast.

"This is history beyond words..." the Edmontonian said of the action.

He further writes in part: "Ourselves and our ship have been very lucky throughout receiving no direct hits, but near misses by enemy bombers have, of course,

Dissatisfaction in West

Committee Told Confederation Menaced by Banking Policy

OTTAWA, July 27.—(CP)—W. A. Tucker, Liberal member of parliament for Rosthern, said before the Commons banking committee yesterday that there was a growing feeling in western provinces against the continuation of confederation because of discrimination by interests in the central part of the Dominion.

Mr. Tucker said he regretted the opinion but felt it his duty to report it. In a spirited address lasting almost an hour Mr. Tucker supported an amendment to the bank bill moved by E. E. Parley (PC—Qu'Appelle) which would limit the extension of charters of Canadian banks to two years instead of 10. The amendment was still under discussion when the committee adjourned until Thursday.

Hon. R. B. Hanson (PC—York-Sunbury), said while in the past there might have been some discrimination against the west in banking practices it had been removed.

Germans Fear Allied Landing In North Italy

LONDON, July 27.—(AP)—Masses of Allied warships, transports and landing craft were reported by the Berlin radio tonight to be concentrated with several divisions of troops in the coastal area of the Tyrrhenian sea for an imminent new landing in northern Italy around La Spezia and Genoa.

Ships and troops were said to have been massed during the week. There was no Allied confirmation of the enemy declaration.

La Spezia is on the Italian west coast 480 miles northwest of Pisa, the southern section of which is held by the 5th Army. Genoa, Italy's leading port, is 90 miles up the coast from Pisa.

Both are behind the German "Gothic line" which extends across the Italian peninsula along the mile-high mountains from points north of Pisa and Florence to around Rimini, on the Adriatic. Landings at La Spezia or Genoa would flank the Gothic line and pose an entrapment threat for the survivors of two German armies who have been pushed 200 miles northwestward from Cassino through Rome.

Plan Defence

Nazis Barricade Pisa's Streets To Stop Allies

ROME, July 27.—German troops barricaded the streets of Pisa in preparation for a bloody, house-to-house defence of the city today while their long-range guns, directed by spotters atop the famous leaning tower, raked American forces massing along the south bank of the Arno river.

Working in full view of American patrols on the opposite side of the river, the Nazis threw barbed wire and concrete barriers across the medieval streets and planted machine gun squads along the river bank to meet the expected American assault.

Allied headquarters spokesmen said German artillery spotters had been observed on the 179-foot leaning tower in the northwest corner of the city and warned that it might become necessary for American guns to destroy the historic building.

ANCIENT STRUCTURE

The famous leaning tower was begun in 1174 and completed in 1359. Its marble walls are 13 feet thick at the base and narrow to about half as much at the top. The building, because of a continuing settling of ground on which it was erected, leans more than 16 feet out of the perpendicular.

On the American right flank, British 8th army units closed in on Florence in the face of desperate German opposition.

One British column hacked out small gains in the Casciano area, eight miles south-southwest of Florence, while another force beat off a furious enemy counter-attack along a secondary road north of Grve and pushed on to the Greve river, less than eight miles due south of Florence.

American Tank Column Races To Trap Seven Hun Divisions

LONDON, July 27.—The German defence line in Normandy cracked wide open today and an American armored column raced southwestward toward the sea in a fast-breaking bid to shear off the Nazi left wing and trap the enemy's 84th army corps of seven badly-mauled divisions.

The Nazi corps was reeling back under the heaviest pressure all along the line from the St. Lo breakthrough to the Atlantic coast as Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley sent a tank spearhead careening down the highway within four miles of the Coutances transport hub, the fall of which would virtually doom the harried

To Shape Future

Canada's Fate Up to Voters Says Premier

By Canadian Press Writer
LETHBRIDGE, July 27.—(CP)—Premier Ernest Manning of Alberta last night told a Social Credit election campaign meeting here that voters in the Aug. 8 provincial election "Hold in their hands the destiny of Canada for the next 25 years."

Mr. Manning who succeeded the late Premier William Aberhart last year, said the Social Credit fight against "socialism" was "a crusade" and on election day, voters would decide whether they would retain the Social Credit movement, seeking "true democracy" or accept a system of state monopoly.

TO SWEEP CANADA

By returning the government to power, the voters would "start Social Credit across Canada like a prairie fire before the wind."

"Forget bitterness, know the facts and in the light of truth use your intelligence to make the wisest decision in your power knowing that in that decision lies the destiny of 11,500,000 people in Canada," Mr. Manning said.

Mr. Manning said it made him laugh "to hear of timid politicians, talking of reform and of what was being done in New Zealand. People I talk to from other lands have never heard of these fellows but they know about Social Credit."

"Yet we have this gang of fellows imported to Alberta to tell you of all people—how to be progressive."

ALBERTA IN LEAD

Even under the restrictions of the present monetary system, Alberta was in advance of other provinces in social services and educational facilities and had advanced labor legislation.

He said he would not waste time by discussing the Independents seeking election in Alberta. "They are washed up and hung out to dry," he said.

Answering a question Mr. Manning said it was hoped the three soldier-members to be elected after the elections on Aug. 8 would be chosen in time to take their seats at the regular session opening next year.

10-Ton Robot Bomb Attacks May Be Made

ADVANCE COMMAND POST.
Allied Expeditionary Force, July 27.—(CP)—An Allied commentator said today that German talk of using 10-ton explosive rockets against England, in the manner of the robot bombs, may not be sheer propaganda talk.

He pointed to attacks by R.A.F. Lancasters on possible V-2 (rocket) sites with 12,000-pound "quake-makers."

A new rocket is reported from certain unauthenticated sources inside France to weigh about 90 tons at launching. Its size is said to diminish as fuel is expended in flight through the stratosphere and the 10-ton warhead is designed as the part of this monster weapon to reach its destination. The commentator said V-2 might be highly inaccurate or might fizzle out in flight, but that there should be no wishful thinking. It is highly probable that the Germans may use it soon to bolster flagging morale of the German population.

LONDON, July 27.—Italy-based U.S. Liberators and Flying Fortresses effectively bombed the Manfredi steel works—an important producer of aircraft engines, arms and munitions at Budapest today as other Liberators from England lashed at German military installations in the Brussels and Ghent areas of Belgium.

Meanwhile, headquarters of the U.S. 15th Air Force revealed that a formation of Mustang and Lightning fighters had returned to their bases in Italy after a dramatic, three-day shuttle flight during which they supported Russian ground troops in Poland and shot up enemy targets in the Bucharest and Ploesti areas of Romania.

DOWN NAZIS
The shuttle fighters shot down at least 64 German planes in the three-day operation, 29 of them over Poland and 35 over Romania, and destroyed at least nine others on the ground at the Mielec air-drome in Central Poland.

RAF Halifaxes and medium bombers also were on the attack from Italy last night, smashing at the Ploesti refineries through a 7,000-foot smoke screen thrown up by the Germans over their battered oil centre.

Despite blinding clouds at 3,000 feet over the fighting areas and threatening rain, Allied warplanes again struck behind the enemy lines in Normandy today. Versatility of the Allied air arm was shown under similar conditions yesterday, when it mounted 3,500 sorties against troop concentrations, strong points, communication facilities and fuel dumps.

Britain Will Buy Canadian Timber

OTTAWA, July 27.—(CP)—Trade department officials said last night that Britain hopes to buy timber valued at $140,000,000 from individual Canadian shippers, during two years after the end of the war in Europe under contracts soon to be negotiated.

Commenting on a London announcement that arrangements for the supply of "considerable" quantities of Canadian timber have been completed, a spokesman said Britain would purchase approximately 1,200,000,000 board feet of timber during each of the two years. That would work out to $70,000,000 worth of timber each year. Bulk of the timber, he said, would come from the west coast but there also would be a considerable portion from eastern Canada.

62,166 Voters On City Lists: Might Be More

A total of 62,166 voters have been listed in enumerations just completed in Edmonton, it was announced Thursday by H. M. Crawford, city returning officer.

An additional 1,000 names expected to be added during revision of the lists next week will bring the total of eligible voters to more than 63,000, a record figure for the city. In the 1935 provincial general election, city enumerations totalled 48,212. In 1940, the figure was 50,685, while for the 1942 city-by-election, approximately 50,000 names were listed.

Large increases in enumerators' figures are noted by Mr. Crawford from many sections of the city. In Poll 17, on the extreme west side of the city limits, a total of 966 names were taken, whereas in 1942 the figure was 667. In Poll 141, south of Stony Plain Road, 725 names are on the present lists, while in 1942, the figure was 472.

Revision of the voters' list will take place next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, at returning officer's headquarters, 9632 Jasper avenue.

ADD OFFICIALS

Three hundred persons are being sworn in immediately as deputy returning officers, Mr. Crawford said. They will be given names of their poll clerks, and it will be the DRO's duty to contact and swear in his poll clerk, to avoid unnecessary activity at election headquarters.

By recent changes in election regulations, deputy returning officers' and poll clerks' remunerations have been raised from $6 to $8 and from $4 to $6 respectively.

Reserve Army Plans to Hold Rifle Shoot

Major competition of the Reserve Army Camp at Scarso will be a shooting match with rifles, light machine guns, machine carbines and pistols which will see teams from all units competing, camp headquarters announced Thursday.

Twenty-four soldiers will compete in the rifle teams, 12 from each unit in the light machine gun teams, six non-commissioned officers in the machine carbine teams and five officers in each of the pistol teams.

Capt. A. C. Longster, camp weapons training officer, will be in charge of the competition for which handsome trophies will be presented to the winning teams and also to the unit having the highest aggregate in the four different competitions.

THE START

Members of the 4th (R) Armored Divisional Troops Company, RCA SC, and the 14th (R) Army Tank Regiment led off in the competition, Wednesday evening when they fired the rifle and pistol competitions.

CSM Henry J. "Pat" Pattison of 1601 21st avenue west, Calgary, has been appointed regimental sergeant major (WOI) of the Calgary Regiment (Tank) unit headquarters announced Wednesday.

He served overseas with the 50th Battalion, CEF, from 1916 to 1919, the same unit in which his father, Pte. J. G. Pattison was serving when he was awarded the coveted Victoria Cross.

The newly appointed regimental sergeant major of the Tanks has served continuously with the Calgary Regiment since 1921. He was awarded the Canadian Efficiency Medal in 1933.

Although the total camp strength is not large the 8th (R) Field Ambulance, RCAMC, is doing an outstanding job of operating the camp hospital. Sgt. Bill Fennell is duty and orderly sergeant of the unit while Ptes. Guy Setter and Alex Malcolm are alternating as ambulance drivers.

Keen competition is in evidence for the daily honor of winning the award for the outstanding lines in the camp area. Monday the award went to the 4th (R) Armored Divisional Troops Company RCASC and Tuesday it was won by the 2nd (R) Battalion, The Royal Edmonton Regiment.

Hundreds of troops now at Scarso Camp were given a new type of training. Wednesday afternoon, when they attended a brief lecture and demonstration in aircraft recognition.

4 Strongholds Are Captured By Red Forces

after two days of savage fighting by the 2nd White Russian army, even as the defenders of Stanislaw were fleeing back into the Carpathians far to the south.

BIALYSTOK VICTORY

Col. Gen. Georgi Zakharov's second army of White Russia secured the Bialystok victory, clearing the way for a two-way push against East Prussia 50 miles to the north-west and Warsaw to the southwest.

Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First army of the Ukraine took Stanislaw, big base dominating the southernmost tip of old Poland, which Stalin described as a "large rail junction and important stronghold of the German defenses in the Carpathian foothills."

Stanislaw is 30 miles from the Czechoslovak frontier, 70 miles southeast of Lwow, and on the Lwow-Bucharest trunk railway.

Covering the highway and rail road lines running southward to Warsaw and the roads to East Prussia, only 50 miles to the north, Bialystok's fall poised a twin threat to the German armies trying desperately to hold the Polish capital and at the same time prevent a break-through into their fatherland soil to the north.

SALUTE ORDERED

Stalin hailed the city's fall as a first-rate military triumph and ordered Moscow's 224 victory guns to fire a 20-salute salute to Zakharov's troops.

Radio Berlin acknowledged the loss of the powerful stronghold more than an hour earlier, admitting that the Nazi defenders had been forced to abandon the city and fall back "several kilometers."

The BBC quoted Moscow reports that the Russians had stormed across the Vistula south-east of Warsaw, and were racing across the Polish plains in a swiftly developing drive.

Berlin also admitted that mounting Soviet pressure had forced the Germans to withdraw in the area of Brest-Litovsk, almost encircled citadel 100 miles east of Warsaw, but claimed the threatened garrison still was holding out.

German Front In Normandy Cut Wide Open

left flank to escape the sudden menace to the armored approach to Coutances.

"The United States offensive now is rolling at top speed," United Press War Correspondent Henry T. Gorrell reported from the front. "Tanks are four miles from Coutances, and the enemy caught to the north is beating a retreat in an effort to get out before Bradley's armor bars the way."

He said U.S. dive bombers and assault planes were "having a field day" beating up the German tanks pulling out "before the record array of American armor."

THICK MINEFIELDS

Another front dispatch said the Americans advancing on the west flank were encountering some of the thickest mine fields and booby traps in France, but little or no small arms fire. It said the Germans moved out during the night under cover of a heavy artillery barrage when their positions became untenable under the mounting U.S. pressure.

Two vital bridges in the vicinity of Coutances had been knocked out by U.S. planes, making more difficult the German retreat from the Lessay-Periers front.

"It is the biggest German catastrophe since Cherbourg," Gorrell said.

His dispatch filed at 6:40 p.m. said more than a dozen sizeable towns had been taken in the last 24 hours and well over 2,000 German prisoners captured.

FEW ESCAPE ROADS

The bulk of the 84th German army corps was north of Coutances. Only a few roads were available for its exit from the hot corner, and "at best estimates it can't pull out more than one third per night," Gorrell said.

Already Coutances was within range of the mobile artillery accompanying the American armor, partially blocking the escape corridor of the Germans.

The first field dispatches of the day reported the capture of Canisy. They said it burned all night after being set afire by the explosions which cracked German resistance in that strong point.

As the tank columns fanned out far beyond Marigny, dispatches reported that in some sectors Adolf Hitler's famous SS regiments had pulled out and left the rear guard fighting to Polish conscripts, hundreds of whom were captured.

PLANES HELPING

The weather had cleared, and wave upon wave of fighter-bombers battered all day at the German position.

"As I write this, our fighter-bombers are returning from the front and executing victory rolls en masse," Gorrell reported. "It is quite a sight to see as many as 40 of them do it simultaneously."

Eye-witnesses told Gorrell they had seen many German tanks knocked out along the St. Gilles-Canisy road. Big German Tiger tanks were dueling with American Sherman tanks in the advanced areas.

The chief German resistance had been from mortars. Infantry was fast cleaning up the corridors laid out by the tanks, and "such was the state of German demoralization at the sight of the U.S. armor that very few snipers stuck around," Gorrell said.

The enemy was hurling tank concentrations and artillery and mortar fire against Lt. Gen. Dempsey's British 2nd Army, but several Nazi counter-attacks were reported repulsed by British and Canadians.

At least 40,000 Germans, half of them elite armored troops, in a great concentration of one division to every two miles, were desperately blocking the British and Canadian drive southeast of Caen on the east of the Orne river.

shore batteries those batteries being knocked out of action before they managed to inflict very heavy damage.

"The whole show was a wonderfully planned manoeuvre down to every last little minute detail. On our approach to the French coast no sign indicated that our presence was known to the enemy. Not until we were within a mile of the shore was a shot fired and we fired it."

"On the fraction of a second of the hour the entire French coast from Le Havre to Cherbourg became a red inferno under the deadly fire from the largest armada of naval vessels ever assembled."

"Every ship had its objective and all succeeded in carrying out their respective tasks."

The main resistance met by our landing forces was form machine guns and mortars that we were steadily knocking out as fast as we received word of their exact positions.

"The coast was ablaze in the early dawn, enemy ammunition dumps, petrol supplies and gun emplacements were billowing clouds of smoke into the rising sun."

"This reads as if it had been easy, but bear in mind that the water lanes were mined, gun emplacements had to be wiped out, Jerry has deadly E boats, fast destroyers and submarines. His air force was absent in the morning but did not fail to counter attack in the darker hours later in the day."

"It was a living hell—not for us, but the lads who had to take the beaches."

LAUDS YANKS

I would like to tell you about the American Navy on that morning. It was really tops. Their gunnery is marvellous. Their destroyers ran right to within a few yards of the beach, exchanging shot for shot with the smaller calibre shore batteries."

"Their soldiers have proved themselves beyond any doubt. Their troops performed many deeds of heroism during the first few hours of that beachhead inferno. Many sacrificed their lives before our eyes to save the lives of their mates who followed."

"Perhaps you wonder why I am praising the Americans so highly and have not mentioned the British. But there is a good reason and it is that we landed the Americans and therefore saw at first hand what they did that morning."

"Monty is fighting his old enemy Rommel again, and has some of his Eighth Army troops with him and crack Canadian units."

AB. Wallis ends up with the non-balance common to the gallant youngsters of the Allied forces who are doing a grand job of it over there. He finishes his letter with: "Weather here is lovely and France looks like a bit of all right from the sea."

"Well mother, your garden certainly sounds interesting. Only wish I were able to enjoy it. No doubt it will be winter when I arrive home again."

Ample Reserve Moisture For Alberta Crops

Sufficient reserve of moisture to last until harvest and excellent condition of all crops are reported for Edmonton district in the provincial department of agriculture's sixth crop report of the 1944 season, released Thursday.

While early alfalfa here was damaged by rain, the yield is 1½ tons an acre. Hay crops, reported fair to poor, are yielding one ton to the acre.

In Southern Alberta, severe drought has again caused severe damage to crops, and a shortage of winter feed in the area is indicated. Many south districts report complete crop failure, while in others, rain would help growth of winter feed.

Crops in Central Alberta are satisfactory and prospects are good, with wheat in the area 90 per cent headed, and oats and barley 50 and 80 per cent headed respectively. Cutting of wild hay in many parts of the central sector of the province has been delayed because of excessive rainfall.

SOME LIGHT CROPS

In the Peace River country, crops are good in some districts, but yields generally are expected to be light. Later crops in particular are suffering from a lack of moisture in the north.

Present condition of livestock in the south is reported to be fair by agriculture officials, while in Central Alberta livestock condition is very satisfactory. Hay and pasture in central districts are "excellent."

Abundant feed and good pasture in dairying districts has resulted in maintenance of satisfactory production levels in the dairy industry. Deliveries are more regular and with improvement of road conditions, July production prospects are said to be very favorable.

Bank Charter Extensions Draw Varied Views

on one occasion Hon. R. B. Bennett as Conservative prime minister had found it necessary to threaten the banks with nationalization to get their support for a loan. Mr. Hanson said he had no recollection of Mr. Bennett ever taking such a stand.

"The banks have done a reasonably good job and should be left alone in the most trying period in the national life of this country," Mr. Hanson said. "This is no time to rock the boat."

Mr. Goldwell supporting the two-year limit said he would personally favor an extension for only one year. If the CCF gained power it would make the banks responsible to a Bank of Canada directorate which was representative of all Canadian interests and not of business alone.

2 Students Killed, 200 Are Injured In Mexico Clash

MEXICO CITY, July 27.—(AP)—Two national university students were killed and about 200 injured yesterday in a clash between opposing factions set off during a law students strike.

Fighting started after a group of striking students "captured" a downtown law school building and the opposing group attacked.

The student factions were proponents and opponents of the rector of the University, Dr. Rodolfo Brito Foucher. The rioting had quieted last night.

The dead were identified as Guillermo Gomez Gutierrez, a law student, and Jose Garcia Castillo, a veterinary student.

Confederation Said Menaced By Bank Policy

ed. Eastern Canada, rather than acting to the detriment of the west, had made it possible for it to survive difficult periods.

URGES BROAD INQUIRY

Mr. Perley is proposing that the charter extension be limited to two years suggested that in that period a broad inquiry be made into the Canadian banking system.

"A great body of public opinion across Canada thinks there is something wrong with the system," he said.

Mr. Tucker supported the amendment on the ground that the banks should not be allowed to carry on for a 10-year period without appearing before parliament to give an accounting.

"Once this act is passed the banks can carry on as they see fit for 10 years," he said.

"There is a deep-seated feeling in western Canada that the policies of this country are controlled by the central part of Canada in the interests of the central part of Canada."

There was strong opinion that industries which should have been located in the western provinces were kept in Central Canada because the banks that issued credit were controlled by directors who came largely from Central Canada.

APPEALS FOR WEST

Mr. Tucker said he made his appeal for direct responsibility of the banks to parliament on behalf of Western Canada.

"There is more of an attitude today than ever I can remember against continuing as part of Confederation because of a feeling of discrimination," he said.

"That's downright stupidity," interjected W. H. Taylor (L. Norfolk).

Several committee members jumped to their feet, objecting. Mr. Taylor said he would withdraw the remark, but added: "I still think it."

"It's the feeling of the people of Western Canada and the Maritimes as well," Mr. Tucker said. "It is not enough for the people of Central Canada to say we are taking a stupid attitude, but the way to stop it is not to say it is stupid."

MEET GRIEVANCES

"With all my heart I hope Canada can be preserved as a great and mighty nation," Mr. Tucker said. "It is no use getting angry with people when they are dissatisfied. The thing to do is to meet their grievances."

"The reason is you've been given too much," said Mr. Taylor.

Mr. Tucker said failure to have the banks directly responsible to parliament would lead to an irresistible demand for national-

For Allowances Table Reveals Percentage Of Children in Provinces

OTTAWA, July 27.—(CP)—Thomas Reid, Liberal member for New Westminster, said last night in the Commons that figures did not bear out the contention of opposition members that Quebec would benefit more than any other province from the payment of family allowances by the Federal government.

Mr. Reid said the Dominion bureau of statistics had furnished him with figures showing that there were 3,409,911 children in Canada under the age of 16 years. He read into the record a table showing how many of the children were in each province and what percentage of the population of the province they represented.

Province	Number of Children	Percentage of Population
Prince Edward Island	30,484	32
Nova Scotia	377,961	30
New Brunswick	457,401	34
Quebec	1,128,137	35
Ontario	968,933	28
Manitoba	204,684	28
Saskatchewan	286,521	32
Alberta	243,547	31
British Columbia	187,427	23

ivation of the banks. The banking system would be the subject of complaint in the next election campaign.

Mr. Hanson said he regarded Mr. Tucker's references to the attitude of the west "with a good deal of concern." There was some disunity in Canada now and there should not be further disunity "over mere fiscal policy."

SEES NO GROUNDS

While the west might have had some complaint in the past over discrimination in treatment by the banks there was no ground for it now.

"I don't think it can be said with any degree of consistency or truth that the hand of eastern Canada has been raised against the west," said Mr. Hanson. "On the contrary the west might have perished if it had not been for the east."

Before the Magistrate

Walter I. Glass does get around. It was observed by Magistrate A. I. Millar, K.C. Thursday morning.

Charged with begging on city streets without the necessary permit, he acknowledged convictions in Red Deer, Saskatoon, Fort William and Edmonton, for similar or other offences, and said he couldn't do any hard work at his age.

His undoing came Wednesday evening, when a police officer saw him stop another man and saw the latter hand something to the accused. When asked about it, the donor stated that the accused had asked for money in order to buy some food. The accused was sentenced to 60 days with hard labor.

The Aztecs and Mayans used cacao beans in place of money.

Duke of Windsor Unlikely to Visit Canada This Year

WASHINGTON, July 27.—(CP)—The Duke of Windsor, governor-general of the Bahamas, last night told The Canadian Press he was unlikely to visit Canada this year.

He said he had thought of going to the ranch he acquired in the Alberta foothills when he was Prince of Wales, but the chances were he would not make the trip just now.

The Duke and Duchess expect to be in the United States about two months, and will spend much of that time in some mountain resort. Here alone for a two-day round of visits with American officials, the Duke will rejoin the Duchess in New York Thursday afternoon.

Anti-Guerilla Command Set Up in Germany

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin Copyright, 1944, by British United Press LONDON, July 27.—Stockholm advices said today that mounting unrest in east Prussia and north-east Germany, directly in the path of advancing Red armies, has forced Adolf Hitler to establish a special unified command there to deal with saboteurs and guerrillas.

(A Stockholm dispatch broadcast by the British radio asserted that German youth, once the backbone of Nazism, was in a "state of latent revolt" and gestapo police camps for both girls and boys had been established with authority to "liquidate" those whom it was found "impossible to educate.")

The report came only a few hours after Nazi Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, in his new role as plenipotentiary for total war mobilization, acknowledged in a radio broadcast yesterday that not all those involved in last week's abortive attempt on Hitler's life and military revolt had been executed or arrested.

Morgenthaun said that ships leaving East Prussian ports were booked weeks in advance and a black market was flourishing in passages.

The Danish press service also reported that German officers wounded several soldiers in a town in North Jutland when a detachment refused to travel to Germany in freight cars and demanded more comfortable transportation.

Goebbels was believed drafting measures which he told the German people in his broadcast would conscript into the army or war work everyone in Germany and occupied countries "who is in a position to work."

B. F. Goodrich SYNTHETIC RUBBER TIRES for Passenger Cars

- ✓ LIFESAVER TREAD
- ✓ HI-FLEX CORD
- ✓ PLY-WELD CONSTRUCTION
- ✓ B. F. Goodrich "KNOW-HOW"

Three of these features are the result of the long experience and continuous research of the B. F. Goodrich tire engineers, features that give strength and bruise-resisting sturdiness to the body of the tire, and a long-wearing, skid-resisting tread proved and tested by millions of miles of driving over every kind of road.

The fourth feature—B. F. Goodrich "Know-How"—is the priceless result of long experience in working with synthetic rubber, backed by the quality reputation of a company that makes more than 32,000 rubber and synthetic rubber products for industry. It is no wonder, then, that B. F. Goodrich is first to announce "pre-war tire mileage available for passenger car drivers." If you have a permit for new tires, make sure you get B. F. Goodrich.

In war or peace B.F. Goodrich FIRST IN RUBBER

Bracken Says:

Old Tory Policy Discarded For New Economic Doctrine Under Reformed Capitalism

cause "it would be the action taken to make the system of private rights, private property, private enterprise and individual freedom work, upon the level of maximum production and distribution."

The reformed capitalism the Progressive Conservative party supported did not seek to do away with profits but rather to make them incidental to maximum production. Legitimate business and industry, he said, would welcome reformed capitalism as its only hope.

"The Progressive Conservative party offers the people of Canada a reformed, efficient, modern, human capitalist system, which will give them everything that is humanly possible to obtain—everything that providence meant that we should have and more than any other type of economy can give," Mr. Bracken said.

TEXT OF ADDRESS

Text of Mr. Bracken's address follows:

Tonight it is my purpose to talk to you on two matters—one, a war policy of the government, the other a peacetime policy of our own. The first is manpower in time of war, the second is reformed capitalism in time of peace.

There are people who say that the manpower question is no longer important; that the war is nearly won, and that the time for discussing it has gone by.

But the government of Canada does not say that. I was startled and shocked when opening a newspaper the other day to see a drawing of a puzzled young Canadian in a big advertisement with this vulgar caption over it: "Have I the guts?" This was part of the government campaign to persuade or intimidate young men who are liable for military service to volunteer for overseas duty.

It is thus apparent that the army needs reinforcements; certainly the farmers need help; and industry is short of men. Yet, there is an army of 70,000 men being kept here in uniform, at the taxpayers' expense not because young Canadians haven't got what the government's advertisement indicated, but because the government itself hasn't shown much of that particular commodity in the handling of its manpower policy.

TYPICAL OF FUTURE

The government in its refusal to deal realistically with this important issue, is typical of what may be expected in the future if it continues to hold office. There are few problems with which we shall be faced when this war is over that will not involve the same considerations as those which have swayed the government's judgment on the manpower question.

What Canada needs today is leadership which is prepared to deal with public questions on their merits, with only one touchstone to test them by.

That touchstone should be the interests of the Canadian people as a whole, not the interests of any section to the disadvantage of any other.

Speaking of leadership reminds me that a rumor is abroad concerning the leadership of my own party. The rumor is to the effect that efforts are being made to dominate me by a certain business group or groups—perhaps to oust me for another leader. May I say emphatically there has been no domination; there has been no attempt at domination; and domination, if attempted by any one section anywhere, will not be allowed.

As for ousting me, no one has tried that; and they wouldn't succeed if they did; and, in any event, there are no aspirants that I know of.

REMAIN PROGRESSIVE

When I accepted the leadership of the Progressive Conservative party, I accepted it from a national convention, because the party had indicated its intention to be progressive, in fact as well as in name, and I intend that it shall remain a Progressive Conservative party, and it may interest you to know that no one has attempted to thwart that objective.

I have heard it rumored too that I am not a colorful figure. That isn't just a rumor; that is the truth. There is at least one color that I have not got, and the leaders of the present government know very well what that color is, for it has not been without display by them in the handling of one of our most vital issues.

I referred a moment ago to the manpower policy. I referred to it because it has become a major human issue involving the future of our nation.

The government has said there must be two armies in Canada, one to fight and one to stay at home.

IN CAUSE OF UNITY

It justifies this course by saying that any other policy would destroy Canadian unity. Does any man who thinks, believe that Canadian unity can be saved by policies which let some sections carry an undue weight of the human cost of war while other parts carry less? Does any sane man think Canada can be held together by policies such as that?

This nation of ours can not exist divided. It can only exist if it is united, and it cannot be united on any policy which leaves upon any section of the people more than a just share of responsibility for defending ourselves against aggression.

I hate war. Every man hates war. I mean to do everything that is humanly possible to banish war; but if we have to defend ourselves against aggression, I know no other course that will save this nation from disruption except to defend ourselves fairly.

FAIR DISTRIBUTION

I have said, that in time of war, we must distribute our manpower in a manner that will be fair to all and that will accomplish victory in the shortest time and at the least cost in human lives. No Canadian who wants to see this war over soon can oppose that policy, and no Canadian who hopes to make this nation one and undivided, and to live in peace and amity with other Canadians can oppose that policy.

And there is no section of Canada where that view cannot be sold when public men put their country's interests before partisan interests. It is time that all those who would save this nation realized that it can not be brought to strength and unity until every section of it, including the present government, faces up squarely to the principle of equal responsibilities to all, as well as equal rights to all.

There never can be unity while the casualty lists light up the inequality of sacrifice resulting from the cowardly policies of the government.

There never can be unity when the government's own agents encourage, solicit, urge and bully men into going active, while the government's own policies shelter 70,000 men from the course its paid agents press upon others.

PEACETIME POLICY

I turn now to a discussion of a peacetime policy. It is my purpose to proclaim certain features of the economic policy of the Progressive Conservative party.

The war may be drawing to a close. Our boys may soon be coming home. If we fail to be prepared for peace, peace can be more terrible than war. And Canada has failed to prepare for peace in any realistic sense. Little that is real has been done to meet our basic problems. The prospect of poverty and unemployment in the future is the greatest worry of every worker. No adequate plans to avoid these plagues have been made.

In a democracy, whatever action is taken in respect to the national economy, must be taken by parliament. Parliament of Canada is dominated by a one-party government—the King Government. That government is dominated by reaction. This means, that, when this great fight for freedom has been won, if we do not better ourselves more than we have done, we will go back and be the slaves of poverty or unemployment or both, once again.

PROMISES OF COURSE

Of course there have been governmental promises—some of them foolish, many of them reckless, many which will never be carried out. Some are legislative measures which have all the earmarks of King Government political expediency. But we are not as easily deluded as we once were. The government, in its feverish hunt for votes, appears to have forgotten that. But the people know that when a measure is brought in, this session not to come in to effect till a year from now—after an election has been held—they know that there is something fishy about such unearned procedure.

What is the result of the failure of the government to establish confidence that there will be post-war security for the people? The people have grown sick of the old way and of the King Government and other governments which knew no better way than to support the old system. The people want to get rid both of the government and the old ways. They want something that will bring results. They want something that will give them what they regard as plain ordinary justice.

In their fear, increasing numbers of people have turned away from the King government, and they turn to other parties to see what they have to offer, and they say to these parties: What have you got to offer that will get us better results? What have you got that has hope in it? What have you got that will give us faith in the future?

SOCIALISM OFFERED

First of all, let me say that it is not for me to tell what the CCF has to offer. But it has something to offer; it is not exactly new but it is undoubtedly different. The CCF offers you socialism.

But socialism is not the way to get rid of poverty. Nor is it the way to get greater security. It is the way, however, to get further regimentation; and it is the way to get chaos. Because, if capitalism and socialism are to be deadlocked in conflict in Canada, the people will not win. Catastrophe will be their joint achievement and either fascism or communism will end up on top. Let us face up to that prospect.

The temptation is to grasp at anything which seems to be the opposite of the King Government or of other governments. And socialism does seem to be the opposite, because it promises us prosperity.

But the catch is—it cannot deliver. Socialism can never end poverty and a low standard of living in Canada. Pin up that truth where it will face you, morning, noon and night.

But, thank providence socialism is not the only alternative to reactionary capitalism. In the last 40 years I have seen a boom, a depression, a war, then a boom, and a depression, another boom, another depression, and another war—and with the latter a measure of prosperity false as it may be.

But such chaos and catastrophe and change is not inevitable. Socialists and leftists are not the only people who have learned anything in the last few years. Other people have learned too; they have learned that they will not have to buy their security in the future at the price of their freedom.

They have learned too that prosperity is the inalienable right of every Canadian; that every good citizen has a claim, as a matter of justice and of morality, to a higher standard of living than he had known before; and that each one is entitled to demand and expect an end to poverty, unemployment, preventable disease and premature death. Why? Because the resources of Canada, fully and equitably used, can bring them such prosperity and contentment as they have scarcely dared to hope for.

GUIDE TO ACTION

That fact must be our guide to future action. Then let us surrender nothing to socialism; neither your private property nor your personal rights—nor the right to think, or to speak or to act as free men.

The issue between reactionary capitalism and socialism is a false issue. The socialist tries to make it the real issue so he can threaten you with reactionary capitalism. The reactionary capitalist tries to make it the real issue so that he can scare you with socialism. But the fact is that the issue today is not socialism vs. capitalism. Nor is it communism vs. capitalism.

The real issue before the people of Canada today is between the reactionary capitalism we have known in the past and a reformed capitalism such as we may have in the future: the issue is between the capitalism of scarcity and the capitalism of abundance, and it is not difficult to decide which we want.

What is the difference between the reactionary capitalism we have had in the past and the reformed capitalism we must have in the future?

ONLY AIM PROFITS

It is not the aim of reactionary capitalism to turn all the natural wealth of Canada into prosperity for the people. Its aim has been profits; it knows no other aim. It has been charged with no other responsibility than profits: it believes as we all once did that that way would bring us progress.

Nor does reactionary capitalism aim to raise distribution to the level of maximum production. It has known no better way than to keep production down to the level of the people's capacity to purchase. Therefore, it has been called what it is, the capitalism of scarcity. Poverty and unemployment are its occasional natural consequences.

The reformed capitalism I am talking about does not aim to do away with reasonable profits and helpful competition. But it aims at maximum production first, with profits incidental thereto. It aims to raise distribution to the level of maximum production. It aims to put at the service of the people of Canada, equitably and fully, the natural wealth of this great country.

MUST MEET CHALLENGE

Capitalism of whatever character must succeed in doing that or it will pass away. But it will not pass away if it meets today's challenge. It will succeed.

Remember this reformed capitalism has never been fairly tried. Never, in any capitalist country in the world has the purpose of the system been production first and profits last. The system gave priority to profits rather than to human welfare. In fact, it was thought that such human welfare as man could have was contingent upon profits having priority.

When the capitalist system is compelled to put welfare first and profits second, it will be another story. Then we will have security, and we will have lost neither our freedom nor the initiative to win prosperity.

NO FEAR FOR BUSINESS

And legitimate business and industry will not fear reformed

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

"It was all right for you to laugh when Smithers paraded in his wife's hat . . . but there was no call for you to go into hysterics when she put it on to go home!"

But, you say, would not this be socialism? No.

It would be the exact opposite of socialism, because it would be action taken to make the system of private rights, private property, private enterprise and individual freedom work, upon the level of maximum production and distribution.

We have found in wartime that to make our present system work effectively, a measure of government co-operation and control has been needed. In peace time we will also need a measure of government co-operation and control. We will need it to plan our progress. It will be the business of government to help with the plans, because a planless economy means a nation in decay.

NO LONGER OLD PARTY

Some people will say that this policy of economic reform is a strange policy for the Conservative party. But the point is that this is not the Conservative party—it is the Progressive Conservative party. It is a new party which will give business, big and little alike, a square deal but no more—a new party with a special obligation to our eleven and a half million Canadian people.

On its behalf I am preaching a revolutionary economic doctrine the death of scarcity capitalism and the birth of abundance capitalism. And I proclaim a revolutionary party plan. Reaction has no place in it. This party we shall purge of everything that is reactionary. If there be in it any groups which put their own before the people's interests, if there are reactionary influences which aim to keep us on the backward path, let them be gone and join some other party. They will have no place here.

So let the reactionaries move out, if there are any left, and leave the forward looking ordinary people of this party—the laborer, the farmer, the white-collar worker, the progressive industrialist, the small business man, the storekeeper, the professional worker, the women in their homes—leave them to set about the remaking of this party so that it will have the power and will to bring security to all.

ASK RESOLUTE SUPPORT

I ask the ordinary people of this country for their resolute support. I ask them for a vote of confidence. I ask our organization in each constituency to make sure that its candidate is pledged to the principles of reform I have laid down.

I urge preparation for the battle which can free this country from the system which gave us scarcity and which has oppressed us intermittently for half a century. Never in the long history of our democracy has a political movement had so great a chance as ours to serve this country.

Let us be united, in courage and in facts, beside a true Canadian policy for peace, and progress, and security and freedom. I ask you for your support in an appeal to men and women everywhere to join their strength with ours at this time, so that when the future character of the economy of this country is to be decided, its people may know the issues and make their choice for rational reform.

I do not care to what party men and women have belonged, or whether they belong to any. There are good people in every party. This job we have to do is bigger than any party. It is not the job of beating the King Government. That would not be much of a job, because it has already beaten itself. It is not the job of swinging Canada out of a war economy back into a pre-war system such as we had in the past. It is the job of swinging Canada out of a wartime economy into a post-war system which we have still to make. And that is a job, which demands all the resolution and skill and patience and experience which we collectively possess.

REDISTRIBUTE WEALTH

The system which we build will not rob you to prosper me, or me to prosper you. Our aim is not alone the redistribution of wealth; it is primarily the creation of new wealth. And this new system will not destroy enterprise or initiative or the rewards of honest and efficient work.

What it will do is to lift the whole of Canada up to a high level of prosperity where every worthy citizen will have all that he can produce and use.

It will be built upon the foundation of freedom, unlimited save by the rights of others; security not limited by the restrictions of the past; security for us all and for our fighting men when they come home. This system will be the product of Canadian brains, Canadian hands, Canadian prayers; built according to a Canadian design, by Canadians and for Canadians, to fit the physical characteristics of Canada and the personal characteristics of the Canadian people.

CHOICE FOR CANADIANS

A few words more. You know, deep down in your hearts, that reformed capitalism is the only system which freedom loving Canadians if they have a choice, will choose.

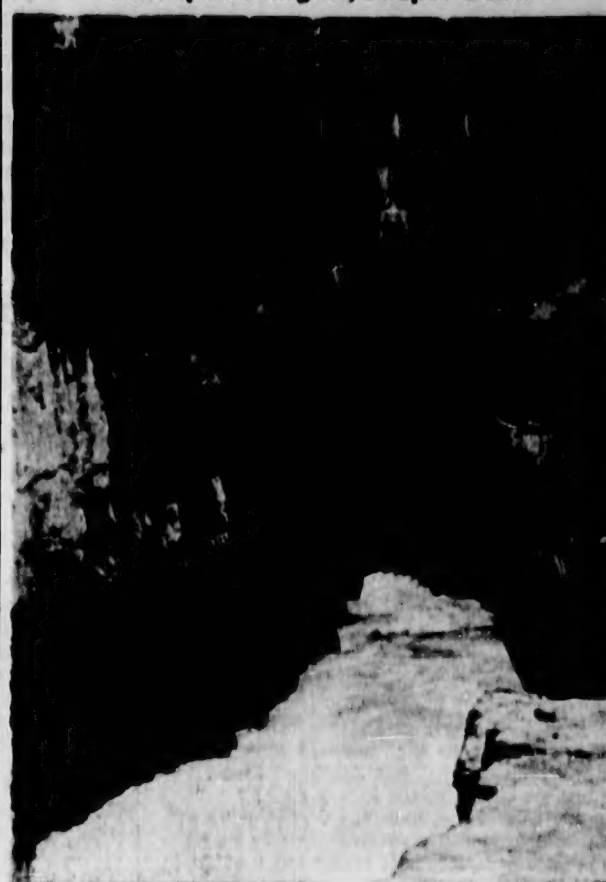

You know, too, that the King government cannot be re-elected. You know, as well, the dangers of trusting the nation's welfare to an inexperienced group of idealists, however sincere. You must know that the only hope of a stable, progressive and rational government in Canada rests with the party I have the honor to lead.

My appeal tonight is to men and women of good-will and high ideals in all parties, to assure that Canada shall not be denied a steady forward-looking government for the heavy task of rebuilding confidence and faith and unity and orderly progress in the difficult days that lie ahead.

Canada will need such a government when war gives way once again, let us hope forever—to peace and the dawn of what we must make a better day for all.

Confusing

In Calgary, M. J. Coldwell, national CCF leader, said the CCF would socialize the brewing industry.

In Lethbridge, British Columbia's CCF leader Harold Winch declares that the "CCF calls for a socialization of the liquor industry."

In Regina, Saskatchewan's CCF Premier T. C. Douglas declares he has no intention of socializing the breweries in his province.

This is a confusing situation which poses several vital questions to the thoughtful elector.

For instance, does this wide difference of opinion between M. J. Coldwell, Harold Winch and Premier Douglas indicate that the CCF has no consistent policy at all, but merely makes up policies as are expedient?

Does the fact that M. J. Coldwell and Harold Winch pledge socialization of the liquor industry and Premier Douglas refuses it indicate that here, at least, is one socialistic theory that has been found impossible to translate into action?

If this is one instance of the wide difference between socialistic theory and socialistic practice, how many more of them are there?

In other words, what concrete assurance is there that any single plank in the CCF platform will be capable of actual operation?

There is no guesswork or confusion in the reforms inherent in the provincial platform of the Manning Social Credit Government.

The Manning Government has reduced the provincial debt; it has forced reduced interest rates; it has set up the most advanced labor legislation in Canada; its public health program is the best on the North American continent; its school system is recognized as the most progressive in the Dominion; its social services are head and shoulders above those of other provinces; its laws rigidly prevent any monopoly in natural resources.

There is no guesswork here, no confusion between theory and practice.

Electorates will bear that difference in mind when they go to the polls August 8.

Northern Waste

The announcement of Colonel F. S. Strong of the United States Army Northwest Service Command that surplus equipment and material in the North will be acquired by the Canadian Government is a straightforward and satisfactory reply to those who have been alleging a tremendous wastage of stores in that area.

Colonel Strong's frankness in admitting that some of these charges of wastefulness might not be entirely untrue is forthright and commendable.

It appears that the difficulty in dealing with this material and equipment in the past has centred about the equivocal position of the American forces in relation to customs and other laws of Canada. That this doubtful situation existed is quite as much the fault of Canadian authorities as of American authorities. Everyone has recognized that fact.

This present action, it should be made clear, does not positively guarantee the elimination of prodigality and waste. But it does create a focal point where complaints may be laid if waste does continue.

From this standpoint it should satisfy everyone.

Something Wrong

Ft. Lt. George Beurling, Canada's ranking ace in this war, has resigned his commission in the RCAF and is said to have offered his services as a fighter pilot to the Chinese government.

Surely there is something wrong with this report.

If Ft. Lt. Beurling is capable of combat duty he should be doing his fighting for Canada. If he is not capable of doing combat duty for Canada's air force, he would be of little use to the Chinese.

There seems to be a difference of opinion between Ft. Lt. Beurling and the RCAF command. If he is right and he has been unjustly removed from fighter to instructor duty, the RCAF should reconsider its decision.

If he is wrong in his judgment and he has been properly moved to instructional work, he should not allow himself to be influenced by a fit of personal pique.

Ft. Lt. Beurling has done a splendid and admirable job for this country and Canadians are proud of him. It would be a pity if he should spoil all this by an ill-considered act of resentment.

In the Last Ditch

Hitler's order of total mobilization throughout his conquered and home territories and his elevation of the Gestapo to the post of sole arm of law and order indicates that the condition described by this newspaper some days ago has now come about in Germany.

The Bulletin's prognostication was that the Gestapo would constitute the last ditch of Hitler's defence; that he could postpone the effects of rebellion for a long time by setting up a reign of terror under the Gestapo.

This, it appears, he has done.

It is an extreme and savage move. But tactically it was his only move. From now until the end of the war, Germany will function as a slave state subject to the supreme will of one man. Military authority is repudiated. The Nazi structure, legally, has become as absolute as any ancient eastern empire.

So long as the army revolt does not spread to the rank and file—something it has shown few signs of doing—German resistance may continue much longer than the more optimistic observers have been inclined to think.

The army will be a much less effective weapon than it was because it has been deprived of its strategic and tactical brains. But, under the drive of terrorism and fanaticism, it still has tremendous capacity.

In short, Hitler has definitely climbed into his last ditch. But it is a good ditch, from his standpoint, and may surprise us all with its defensive properties.

Post-War Controls

Mr. H. H. Hannam, President of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, wants "certain" wartime controls retained after the war in order to give greater security to farmers. He says that security for the farmer and his family is a national responsibility which must be met.

That the farmer needs more security than he had in pre-war days will not be questioned by anyone who is familiar with farm conditions, particularly in western Canada. That the national authority will have to be exerted to give him that added security seems certain. And that the general welfare hinges on the welfare of the people on the farms is a matter of record.

But a point not to be ignored is that if "certain" controls are to be retained in order to assure the economic position of one class, other classes will demand other controls to protect them—and will get these. The country cannot be half-controlled and half-uncontrolled. That hybrid arrangement would not work. Human nature wouldn't let it.

If there are to be post-war controls for the farmer there will also have to be controls for the wage-earner, the salary-earner, the manufacturer, the merchant. We can have either an uncontrolled economy or an all-round controlled economy. If prices and working conditions are to be fixed by law for one class, it may as well be accepted that they will have to be fixed for other classes. Fair play requires that.

After four years' experience it can be taken as broadly true that everyone is for continuance of the controls which profit or protect him and his class; but against the continuance of controls which profit or protect the other fellow or the other class at his expense. That is something it won't do to forget when controls are being urged to safeguard one class or another in post-war times.

Your Blood Donor Clinic Date

Our Servicemen Keep Their Appointments, But We Often Cancel Ours
By MARY ALICE QUAYNE

Did you keep your appointment at the blood donor clinic as you promised to do? Or were you among the many persons in Canada who canceled their appointments or failed to keep them?

Back from an engagement they had kept with certain German railroad marshaling yards up north of the Brenner Pass, a formation of Flying Fortresses swept in for a landing. One of the planes signalled that it had wounded men aboard. As it slid down the runway there was a rush of ground crews and ambulances to meet it and the young pilot struck his head out of the window and yelled:

"The waist gunner's been hit! The combat was hell!"

As the bomb doors dropped open a young medical officer climbed into the ship. He gave orders rapidly. One of the groundmen ran to an ambulance, galloped back with two packages of plasma, thrust them into the plane.

The doctor said afterwards that if the gunner, whose side had been ripped open by a piece of anti-aircraft shell, which was still lodged inside him, had been moved it would probably kill him—unless he first received a transfusion of plasma. The gunner got the plasma before he was moved from the Flying Fortress.

"What are his chances, doctor?" someone whispered to the doctor as they lowered the trembling youngster to the ground.

"Swell!" he replied with a show of enthusiasm unusual for a doctor. That shot of plasma put him on roller skates to the hospital."

Date in Normandy

Private Herbert Cameron of Toronto had a very important appointment. He did not make it himself, but he was right on hand to keep it. You see, Private Cameron was a member of the Canadian Regiment when it made its push in Normandy.

It was 5 o'clock in the morning. There had been a lull in firing after midnight and Cameron had fallen asleep in the foxhole he had dug. Suddenly mortar shells started exploding near by.

Then it happened—the thing that could only happen one time in a million. A shell landed smack in his foxhole. There was a deafening roar, then blackness.

Private Cameron was the most surprised soldier in Normandy when he came to some time later. He was alive! He could feel the ground pressing reassuringly against his shoulder blades. He could see the men hovering over him. He could make out a red cross on one's sleeve. Above him hung an odd contraption—a couple of bottles and a tube; one of the bottles had some letters on it. Through the haze he finally put together the letters: "P-L-A-S-M-A."

It all came clearly to him then. His veins were warming, and he got a further hold on himself out of the memory of what plasma had done before for many of his wounded buddies.

Private Cameron kept his appointment with fate, and he lived to tell it—thanks to expert medical aid and to the person back in Canada who had given the pint of blood that kept him alive until the surgeons could operate.

Social Security for Canadians

Why Family Allowances Are Important to the Plan
By GRANT DEXTER

OTTAWA—The first question that arises with respect to family allowances is: Why are they necessary? Why commit the country to spend $300 millions a year?

You can get any number of different answers from those who favor the policy. A few are attracted by the presumed political advantages. Most people, however, realize that the measure on balance will be a political liability and not an asset. Some are attracted to the policy by fear of socialism on the one hand or fascism on the other. Here, they argue, is a way of meeting a demand for social security which does not involve government intervention directly in business. It avoids increases in wages, because of family responsibilities, which would increase production costs uneconomically and cripple exports both in a direct and indirect way.

But these are really not answers to the question. The best explanation is not specific but general. It is claimed that there has been a steady growth in public sentiment in favor of a greater measure of social security. This growth dates from the beginning of the century and received a marked impetus in the First World War. It found expression in social security measures which were widely adopted in this country in the first two decades of this century—the Fair Wage Act, the Industrial Disputes Act, the Combines Investigation Act, mothers' allowances, workmen's compensation and various public health measures.

These were followed by old age pensions, pensions for the blind and an increasing agitation for unemployment insurance, penal reform and so on. The depression again stimulated the desire for social betterment and the present war, like the preceding war, has once more added vigor to the movement. The greatest forward step in the present war is unemployment insurance. Past achievements were received in some detail in these columns a year ago.

The increase in expenditures for social purposes, given in the preceding article, reflect the growth of this public opinion. Further evidence, if it is required, is to be found in the Atlantic Charter, in declarations by national leaders among the United Nations. Mr. King's speech in Toronto on Oct. 9, 1942, is worth recalling. "The era of freedom will be achieved only as social security and human welfare become the main concern of men and nations."

But in the case of this country there were obstacles to progress—chief among them the British North America Act. The constitution placed jurisdiction in this field almost wholly with the provincial legislatures whose financial resources were strictly limited. It is argued, and not without force, that this country fell somewhat behind in the movement for social betterment. There was, in Canada, nothing comparable with the U.S. social security act of 1935, with the advances made in the United Kingdom, Australia, New Zealand and other countries.

That there was a public awareness of this is indicated by the numerous commissions of inquiry which have been set up since 1930. There were two in Ontario, two in British Columbia, one in Quebec and in Alberta, and several Dominion inquiries.

Family allowances have been in operation for a number of years in Australia and New Zealand. The reasons for their adoption in these Dominions is no particular warrant for similar action in Canada. But the experience in Australia, as will be shown, is not without significance.

If the broad argument in favor of further substantial measures of social security is conceded the question still remains—Why adopt the particular policy of family allowances?

Family Allowances

By Mrs. Cora Casselman, M.P. for Edmonton East.

This discussion of family allowances seems to be too one-sided. So I would like to have the privilege of putting the facts as I see them. I have checked them pretty closely, and feel convinced that we have something here which will go a long way towards bringing down to earth those high sounding plans that people love to make. Most of us want to see our children get a better chance than we got. We extend that wish to other children. Well, here is one way to help a child find its way to better health of body, mind and spirit. If I can help to do that, I shall not have lived in vain.

We have been saying that we will never go back to conditions of depression days. And we won't. Here is one measure that will help defeat depression. It is not the only one, thank goodness. A committee of the House of Commons, on industrial and international relations, back in 1929 discussed this and similar measures. But first, world-wide depression, and then a world-wide war interfered.

Australia had limited family allowances in 1920 and has since increased and bettered the scale. New Zealand has them. Most of the European countries, democratic as well as fascist, had one type or another of children's allowances.

their problems investigated by a special house committee under Representative Augustine Kelley of Pennsylvania. . . . Kelley has five sons, all holding union cards, all in service. . . . Gov. Dewey's "economy" administration in Albany has sent $500,000 more than any Democratic group which has run the state in the last twelve years.

The Berlin radio beamed to America tried a new propaganda trick the other night. An announcer, introducing a newscaster, said, "The views of this commentator do not necessarily reflect the views of this station."

the world. They did not come as armies had previously done through history, to rob and enslave. They came from far across the seas, from the United States, Britain, Canada, Australia and New Zealand, simply to restore to people like themselves the simple things of life, which had been snatched from them. They brought food for the hungry, they brought succor for the sick, they brought dignity back into human life. And they asked nothing in return.

Some who came that way lived to pass a day or two with those they rescued. Then they passed on to other struggles in other places, and eventually to return to the homes and families they had left at the beginning. But at every passing and at every passing they left others who would go on further, and who would never go back.

They were no Caesars bent on conquest. They were the boys from the school up the street, the fellow who worked in the filling station at the corner, the boy who rode his bike on the sidewalks and got hauled out by the cops. They had no lust to enslave or kill their fellow men. They'd rather have gone to a dance or a ball game or played hockey or have gone swimming. Instead they went out and fought and died in such numbers and at so many far-off places that neither the sun of the sky nor the bright sun of freedom can ever again set upon their graves.

Still the Crosses Multiply

"I sometimes think that never blots so red
The roses where some dying Caesar bled;
That every hyacinth the garden wears Dropped in her lap from some once lovely head."

By J. H. GRAY

"The flood tide of victory, which began at El Alamein and Stalingrad and Guadalcanal, flows on and ever on. As it rolls it throws momentarily into the spotlight the names of places we never before have heard of and will seldom hear of again. Places like Derna, Gabes, Souase, El Agheila and Sfax. Places like Bougainville, Wewak, Buna and Gona. Places like Poltava, Cherkass, Zmerinka and Sarni. Places like Bayeux, Caen, Carment and St. Lo. When our liberating armies pass on they drop back into the obscurity that has always been theirs.

In the wake of the armies come the war correspondents to poke into ruined towns, to hunt out facts and get the fleeting fame of the little places into the records; knowing all the while that these records are themselves as ephemeral as snow upon the desert's dusty face.

Yet the job is done, the process goes on. They describe the mess of rubble that was once a home or school. They see the civilians coming dazedly back to patch up their lives. And in a quiet spot among the trees they always notice the neat rows of crosses which mark the graves of those who came with freedom and stayed with death.

Eric Johnston is telling this story about his visit with Stalin in the Kremlin.

Johnston says he had trouble getting Soviet officials to let him take American newspapermen into Siberia, so he finally appealed to Stalin after being turned down by the Russian Foreign Office.

These neat white crosses are more than markings of graves. They are symbols of a resurgence of decency in this world. Who were the young men? Their names will mean nothing to the people who stroll through the cemeteries when peace comes again. Eventually the weather will erase the names. Though the names will disappear the identity of those who have died will become clearer as the years pass. They were the young men who came to liberate the world. They did not come as armies had previously done through history, to rob and enslave. They came from far across the seas, from the United States, Britain, Canada, Australia and New Zealand, simply to restore to people like themselves the simple things of life, which had been snatched from them. They brought food for the hungry, they brought succor for the sick, they brought dignity back into human life. And they asked nothing in return.

Some who came that way lived to pass a day or two with those they rescued. Then they passed on to other struggles in other places, and eventually to return to the homes and families they had left at the beginning. But at every passing and at every passing they left others who would go on further, and who would never go back.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW

By Jack DeLong

How would you like the job of keeping an accurate account of every single animal in a horse race from the instant the field breaks from the barrier to the split second when the winner flashes by the winning post in a cloud of dust and a Niagara of roaring racing fans?

I'll bet your answer is that you wouldn't want any part of that job. Well, I think that would be the answer of any normal human. It's my answer and I maintain, against considerable opposition, that I'm included among those present who are potentially normal.

And yet there are actually people who like that kind of job and who from outward appearances at least you would be unable to tell from the normal people.

Such a person is Lou Davies, farm expert extraordinary who has been making a living out of performing mental gymnastics concerning the movements and ever-changing positions of each and every outturner in each and every race around Western Canada tracks for some many years.

"Sweet Runner by five lengths. Annoyed by a length and a half. Sum Tam a head. Nellie Gold-dust by six."

As racing came to a close at the highly successful Calgary Stampede meeting the other afternoon the voice of Chart Caller Lou Davies could be heard by an interested few in the press box—calling the form chart as he will do here during the 10 days of racing which begin at the Exhibition track on August 5.

The next day hundreds of people picked up their newspapers to see how the horses had run, little realizing that the form chart on that one particular 6 1/2 furlong affair alone contained 175 facts and that 73 of them were recorded by the chart caller in less than 1 1/2 minutes.

Just on the chance that you are one of the uninitiated who haven't heard of the chart it is a mass of type several inches deep and two columns in width recording all the facts in any given horse race. It records what happened to every horse in the race and what you, in the future, to figure a horse's chances in another event on his past performance.

HAS ALL THE DATA

THE chart gives you the information you get in the past performance program such as the names of the horses, weights, jockeys, post positions and owners. In addition it records where each horse was at the start, quarter, half, three-quarters, stretch and finish, the odds, prices on the three horses in the money, fractional times and other information held in high esteem by horse betters.

Then too, in short and breezy style, the chart caller records in the footnotes information as to how certain horses ran and if they suffered from bad racing luck.

It has been said that a chart caller has to be a combination of a tobacco auctioneer, a double talk artist, and the prize talker at a sewing bee.

The caller has to be on his toes on clear days but his task is even more arduous when it is raining and muddy. Then he must know his horses and watch the field closely for the thoroughbreds look pretty much alike when they are coated with mud.

Lou Davies, who has been calling them in the west for almost 20 years, has called chart in many parts of the continent and also in England, in addition to calling horse races he has worked on the dog tracks calling a chart on the canines similar to that on horses.

Rain or shine, Lou is in the chart box for every race on every day of the western racing season. He knows the horses, is a student of horse racing and when he makes his footnotes on a chart he records facts which the average bettor never saw although he was watching the race.

Next time your horse finishes far up the track and you hear mutual tickets don't start making excuses for the thoroughbred. Just pick up your paper the next day and read the chart. There's a chance you may be right and your thoroughbred had poor racing luck. More likely you'll find it recorded that "So and So quit"—"So and So lacked speed"—"So and So showed a dull effort."

Whatever happened to the horse that carried your hopes you'll find it all recorded in the form chart.

Walk-Rite "B" Shades Bomberettes 8-7 to Deadlock Intermediate Playoff

Pats Enter Girls' Northern Fastball Final

Take Series From C.P.A. Two Straight

Army and Navy Pats moved into the northern Alberta senior girls' fastball final Wednesday night when they trounced C.P. Airlines 12-3 to sweep the best of three series two straight. Walk-Rite "B" edged out Bomberettes 8-7 in the second half of the double-header at Kingsway Park to square the intermediate series.

The Pats now meet last season champion Walk-Rite "A" for the northern title, starting on Friday night, and the winner of that playoff will tangle with the south champs for provincial honors in a series commencing August 6 at either Calgary or Medicine Hat.

Fourteen hits combined with 13 C.P.A. errors gave the Pats an easy win. Teddy Howey and Mary Mercer led the hitting attack with four safeties in five trips to the plate each while Thora Stewart with a pair of doubles and Ruby Ford with two singles, also did well with the bat for the winners.

Jean Stewart, just back from the coast, was in the box for the Pats and scattered nine hits for her triumph. Pats scored three in the second and two in the third while C.P.A. were counting one in the second and two in the third to take the lead which they held throughout. Three singles, a walk, three stolen bases, a passed ball and an error produced three more runs for the winners in the fourth, which put them out in front by an 8-3 margin. The Pats then coasted to their victory and held the C.P.A. girls scoreless for the remainder of the game.

THREE RUNS IN 10th. GIVE WALK-RITES WIN

Three runs in the 10th inning last night gave Walk-Rite "B" their 8-7 win over Bomberettes in the intermediate girls' clash. Deciding fixture of this series will be played on Friday night.

Myers, Val Stevenson and Gwen Riddle crossed the plate with the winning runs for the Walk-Rites in the 10th. Bomberettes came back in the last of the 10th, but a threat that netted them two runs fell short of deadlocking the count again.

Isobel Dunn and Lil Graham both singled and were batted in by "Bubbles" Ferrier's double to center field. This brought Bomberettes within one run of their opponents and the winning run was on base, but Gwen Riddle tagged Ferrier at third to retire the side.

Two runs by Dot Myers and Val Stevenson, in the sixth inning tied the ball game up and forced the extra innings. The markers came on a fielder's choice, a single, a passed ball, three stolen bases and a sacrifice by Gwen Riddle.

Local Betting Record At Saskatoon Races

SASKATOON, July 27.—Despite a deep and holding racing strip the racing card at the Saskatoon Exhibition produced a local record betting total when close to $60,000 passed through the pari-mutuel machine.

Pagan Pilot scored a decisive victory in the handicap event when he showed the way for the entire mile and one-sixteenth with Adenos second two and one-half lengths back. Bombshell, which was prominent early, gave way and was doing his best to have the show from Youville.

Cave Boy came right back from a winning performance Tuesday in the penner to defeat Marelius by a length. Fine Thing surprised in the second and made a show of her field to finish eight lengths in front of Mataco. The daily double was worth $68.65.

Messenger, daughter of the speedy western bred Silent Messenger, displayed some of her sire's speed in leading from start to finish in the juvenile race. Car-mar Lass took the place with the favored Sibrom third.

Starnaut, ridden by the Saskatoon by W. R. Taylor, and owned by the lady's father, paid $21.50, the best price of the day, in the seventh. It was the first win for the jockey and for the Taylor stable.

Fairy Witch ran second here after making the pace and the Quinella returned $98.25.

Western racing has been hard hit by the war, but is carrying on even more successfully than ever. A recent count showed more than 70 owners, trainers, jockeys, groomers and other attendants are in the services now.

INTERNATIONAL TOPICS: Officials of the International Baseball League are thinking seriously of organizing a league in western Ontario after the war in the territory once occupied by the old Canadian and Michigan-Ontario loops. The league would be of Class D calibre, and would be a great training ground for young players developing in Canada in future years.

INCIDENTALLY: Andy (Toronto Star) Lytle was cavorting about the garden of the gulf—otherwise Prince Edward Island—the past week or so, writing about life in that eastern summer playground. He took special interest in the harness races, and the colorful people who surround race doings on the island. An interesting experiment is afoot in Sudbury, Ont. Louis' Kayo of Max Schmeling

By BARNEY ROSS
Former World Champion

My greatest sports thrill came on the night of June 22, 1938, when Joe Louis sailed into Max Schmeling instead of boxing cautiously as the German expected him to do. Herr Max had an idea his previous knockout of Louis would leave Smoky Joe thinking more of not being hit by a rocking right than of attacking.

Usually I'm cool at the ringside, but when Louis made Schmeling teeter, then stagger, then squelch like a stuck pig and finally landed a right to the jaw that sent him tottling with his legs kicking crazily, I went wild with enthusiasm along with the rest of the immense crowd in Yankee Stadium.

It was a smashing victory and vindication for Joe Louis, and it took him only two minutes and four seconds to demonstrate that he had only become careless two years before.

OFF TO THE WARS: Western racing has been hard hit by the war, but is carrying on even more successfully than ever. A recent count showed more than 70 owners, trainers, jockeys, groomers and other attendants are in the services now.

INTERNATIONAL TOPICS: Officials of the International Baseball League are thinking seriously of organizing a league in western Ontario after the war in the territory once occupied by the old Canadian and Michigan-Ontario loops. The league would be of Class D calibre, and would be a great training ground for young players developing in Canada in future years.

Pirates Advance by Downing Giants

Pittsburgh Now Second In National Ball Race

NEW YORK, July 27. — (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirates moved into second place in the National League standings by defeating New York Giants 6-5 before 12,909 war relief fans Wednesday night.

Fritz Ostermuller, though he failed to finish, gained his eighth triumph, as Nick Strincevich came to his aid when the Giants loaded the bases with one out in the ninth.

BOSTON BRAVES DIVIDE WITH CINCINNATI REDS

BOSTON, July 27.—(AP)—After knocking Bucky Walters out of the box for a 9-2 victory, Boston Braves dropped the nightcap by a 8-5 margin Wednesday while splitting a National League doubleheader with Cincinnati Reds.

Walters was chased during the sixth inning of the opener when the Braves set off a six-run scoring blast after collecting three tallies in the fifth.

Ira Hutchinson and Al Javery gave the Reds a total of 11 bases on balls in the second game but the Braves closed in determined fashion by driving over three runs with five hits in the ninth.

Canadian Athlete Reported Wounded

CHATHAM, Ont., July 27.—(CP)—Lieut. Larry O'Connor, 32, outstanding Canadian athlete, was announced wounded while fighting in France July 15, it was learned here last night.

He was in charge of sports for the Canadian army in England and went to France July 4 as an infantry reinforcement officer. He is regarded as the outstanding hurdler in Canada since winning the Dominion 120-yard low hurdle championship in 1937. He placed sixth in the 110-metre hurdles at the Berlin Olympics in 1936 and in 1938 placed second on the hurdles at the British Empire Games in Sydney, Australia.

3,000 Sorties

OTTAWA, July 27.—(CP)—Heavyies of the RCAF bomber group in Britain flew nearly 3,000 sorties during June and dropped almost 10,000 tons of bombs. Compared with 12,600 tons dropped in all of 1943, Air Force headquarters said last night. June—the invasion month—saw the group's Halifaxes and Lancasters change almost entirely from a strategic to a tactical force.

Cincinnati Attendance Drops

Manager Bill McKechnie Is Reported on Way Out

By HARRY GRAYSON

NEW YORK, July 27.—William Boyd McKechnie, for more than 20 years considered one of the great strategists of baseball, is reported on his way out in Cincinnati.

Off his record in the Rhineland, this comes as a surprise. Assuming command of an outfit that finished a smacking last in 1937, Bill McKechnie has not been out of the first division in six years. He won two pennants and a world championship, and this season the Reds promise to repeat as runners-up to the star-studded Cardinals.

But seven years easily could be the life of a manager in a city the size of Cincinnati, especially one so conservative as Deacon Bill McKechnie.

The paying guests have tired of his brand of baseball to such an extent that attendance has decreased alarmingly.

In an age when things are being done explosively and in a large way all over the world, the Redlegs still sacrifice in early innings.

NO MORE $5,000 BONUS

Deacon Bill McKechnie is poor newspaper copy, lacks showmanship. He's as drab as a coat of gray paint.

This was quite all right when Wilkinsburg Will was getting a $5,000 bonus in addition to his $25,000 salary for drawing more than 450,000 at home, but he hasn't collected the bonus for the past two campaigns.

Those closest to the Cincinnati panic say that, from a business angle, the club's crying need is for personalities.

Powell Crosley, Jr., is a business man, and the tip is that he is about to give Cincinnati one in the way of a new manager.

When there is nothing else to do, the baseball owner changes managers.

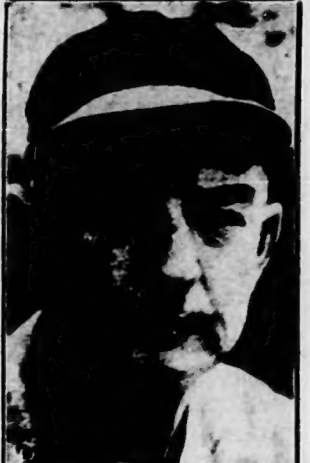

Cincinnati demands one who does his master-minding out loud.

Draw Announced Beach Baseball

Draw for opening rounds of the big baseball tournament to be held in connection with the annual summer sports meet at Alberta Beach on Saturday and Sunday of this week, has been announced.

Games Saturday are as follows: Roxington vs. Riviere Qui Barre, 12:00 noon; Naimo vs. Athabasca, 2 p.m.; Vimy vs. Onoway, 4 p.m.; Horsehill vs. Dodds, 6 p.m.

Draw for games in the final round Sunday will be made after Saturday's games are concluded.

Bill McKechnie... The Deacon lacks showmanship.

Powell Crosley, Jr., Warren C. Giles

Night baseball and all the Reds' attendance last season dropped to $40,000.

This year it is below that of every club in the majors with the exception of those poor relations, the Browns.

Compare that with the more than 900,000 attracted to Crosley Field as McKechnie was winning the Reds' first flag in 20 years in 1939, and the 1,000,000 who paid to see Bucky Walters and Paul Derringer pitch the club to the world championship the following year, and you know why Powell Crosley, Jr., is asking questions.

Crosley is a phenomenally successful radio magnate and manufacturer who does not wish to be identified with a loser.

MASTER-MINDING OUT LOUD

General manager Warren C. Giles showed his concern when he paid the Cardinals $30,000 for Harry Gumbert, principally to get the Tejan on the Reds' side. The right hander enjoyed his greatest effectiveness against Cincinnati.

Allan Boes Takes Golf Tournament

WASAGAMING, July 27.—(CP)—Allan Boes, Manitoba amateur golf champion, won the Clear Lake golf tournament late Wednesday, edging Bill Thompson of Brandon, Man., in a hard-fought final round. Boes carded a 71, Thompson 73.

Thompson beat Dick Garret of Winnipeg, and Boes trimmed Dr. Bud McDiarmid of Brandon in semi-final matches.

NEW YORK, July 27.—Victor Jory, one of the busiest character actors in the entertainment world, said, "I would pay $50,000 for a top-flight fighter, if I wasn't sure that said fighter would worry me to an early grave."

Jory of the villainous countenance is perhaps America's most rabid fight fan. He is a former pug; also a former manager. He engulfs and engulfs current boxing writers with his flood of up-to-the-minute fight statistics. Jory, who must be in his 40's, is lean and athletic-looking; although he says he was on the verge of a nervous breakdown years ago when managing a certain young welterweight while he was playing with a stock company at Minneapolis. No—it wasn't King Tut nor Frank Battaglia, in whom villainous Vic had financial interests.

JORY owned this particular welterweight outright, and he tried to be manager and trainer. "I would put this kid to bed every night," he said last night at Toots Shore's, "and then I would spend a couple hours running back and forth between the fire escape at the rear of the hotel and the front entrance."

And every night that kid would break out; and I'd pick him up later—full of gin—at a certain hot spot. He almost killed me. I was ready for a straight jacket when I gave him up. I took far more punishment than he ever did in the ring."

Jory of the coal-black hair sat there at the little white table in tweed sports jacket and wide-open blue shirt as he talked. He shrugged off inquiries about his success in the current radio hit "Dangerously Yours" in which he is a swash-buckling hero every Sunday afternoon. He clammed up to questions about the new Broadway play "The Perfect Marriage," which goes into rehearsal soon. He wanted to enjoy himself. He wanted to talk boxing.

STARRED IN PICTURES

THE guy who had starred in such pictures as "Gone With the Wind," "Mid-Summer Night's Dream," "D. City" and 107 other films, Jory said, "If you're once bitten by the fight bug, you never get it out of your system. Yet that kid in Minneapolis made me so disgusted with boxing—for a while—that I turned to race horses. I had a small string for several years. I had some fairly good ones, like Bulwark, Peter Tokalon, Pompee, Russia, Minter and Slattery. They proved more expensive than fighters. They almost ruined me financially, probably because I made the mistake of betting on my own horses. I'm convinced that the biggest sucker in the world is the guy who bets on his own nags."

H. P. Whitney Has Interesting Racing Career

By NED BROWN

NEW YORK, July 27.—Harry Payne Whitney was America's premier sportsman in many fields—yachting, polo, big-game hunting, dogs, and, above all, horse racing. Whitney was the largest private breeder of thoroughbreds in this country. His horses won every stake of importance on the American turf—some of the richest several times. Beginning in 1913 and ending with his unexpected death, Oct. 26, 1930, at the age of 58, he led the winning owners nine times. He bred more winners of $100,000 than any other man of his time—nine.

Whitney never did anything by halves, and that went for his betting. A sportsman's sport in every way, democratic and convivial, Whitney and his cronies, Clifford Cochran and Colonel Williams, bet in six figures on any game that suited their fancy at the moment. One story has it that Harry F. Sinclair entered racing after winning a fortune from Whitney playing cards enroute to New York following a running of the Kentucky Derby. Whitney wanted men like Sinclair in racing, is said to have suggested that the wager be

Those horses take a splendid delight in double-crossing you."

Victor Edwin Jory, although reared in Pasadena, Calif., as a schoolmate of the late Charley Paddock, "the world's fastest human," began boxing at Vancouver, B.C., where he had four professional fights in the old Horseshoe Arena. He also fought twice at Nanaimo, B.C., a coal camp; once in Bellingham, Wash., and once in Everett, Wash.

"I was a fair light heavyweight," he explains, "but just a preliminary fighter. They wouldn't pay me as much money for fighting as I could earn as a ham actor in stock companies. So I turned more and more to the stage. Later I turned Simon pure as a member of the National Guard in California and won the western states light heavyweight championship at the Presidio in San Francisco—just for fun. But by that time I was an actor, and have been ever since. But I've still lived in the ring—vicariously—and wish I had a fighter today—if I wouldn't have to live for both of us."

Yanks, Arrows Clash Tonight

Arrows take on the league leading U.S. Army Yanks tonight at Renfrew Park commencing at 7 o'clock in a scheduled City Senior Baseball League fixture. The Arrows are badly in need of a victory to keep their playoff hopes alive while the Yanks will no doubt be out to increase the lead.

made five months before he died. He wagered more than $50,000 that his Whitehorse would win the Belmont Stakes, June 7, 1930. Gallant Fox beat Whitehorse three lengths.

Harry Payne Whitney gave a lot to the turf, got a lot out to racing, and it lost a lot when he died.

All communications systems in Turkey are under government direction.

BET AGAINST MAN O' WAR

"Eight thousand more," responded Whitney, then added: "Better make it $50,000. John, John was always a good water, and his name-sake is worth a bet." John lost that day.

Whitney was the one man who had the colts and did not hesitate to send them against the immortal Man o' War. Several books had to dig deeply to pay off his winnings when Man o' War, the favorite at 4-5 at two in 1919, lost for the only time as Whitney's applanamed Upset set a record for the three-quarter mile Sanford Stakes at Saratoga that still stands, 1:15-1/5 and Big Red was left at the post.

The layers got even, however, when Whitney plunged as heavily on his John P. Grier against Man o' War in their memorable duel that made the Dwyer Stakes at Aqueduct famous, July 10, 1929. Whitney's last sizeable bet was

Northern Soldier Steps on Mine Survives to Relate Experience

Pte. O. H. Fraser of Fort Chipewyan stepped on an anti-personnel mine in Italy last April and survived to tell the story when he arrived back in Edmonton Wednesday night.

"When you step on one of those mines you really haven't much chance," he said, "but I guess I was just plain lucky. They weigh about four pounds and shoot about four feet in the air before exploding."

Pte. Fraser and three other men were out stringing barbed wire in front of German lines one night when two enemy machine guns opened fire on them. "We hit for a ditch in a hurry and made it back towards our own lines. Just about 25 yards from safety we crawled out of the ditch and I stepped on this mine."

He said he was "quite a mess." The shrapnel got him in both legs, the stomach and his left arm, and now after several months in hospital and 11 operations everything except his arm, which is still in a cast, seems to be "okay" again.

Li-Col. E. Brown, M.M., E.D., chairman of the Soldiers' Welfare Commission, who went to meet the returning men at Brooks, said that he is trying to make arrangements for Pte. Fraser to fly to Fort Chipewyan to visit his father, Rod Fraser.

Five other men returning last night included Pte. C. A. Mageau, Sgmn. M. A. Pearson, Pte. E. Stroschin, Sgmn. W. Yeadall and Pte. E. B. Yuill.

They were all of the opinion that the German robot bombs are creating more havoc than the blitz and that they're harder on people's nerves but they say the British seem to be taking them in their stride.

Wins Promotion

Lt.-Lt. A. R. Ellstock has been promoted to that rank from flying officer, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Ellstock, 10144 120 street. He is nearing the end of his second tour of operations in almost three years' overseas service.

In the Sicilian campaign and the landings in Italy before his eyes and nerves gave out. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emilie Mageau of St. Lina. Two other brothers are also in the service, one in the air force at the west coast and the other in the navy in Eastern Canada.

Pte. E. Stroschin, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Stroschin of Evansburg, is a member of The Loyal Edmonton Regiment and took part in the Italian campaign. He was returned to Canada because of lowered category.

Sgmn. Pearson, R.C.S., has been in England for the last eight months and had a personal experience with robot bombs. He was visiting friends in London when some of the "buzz" bombs started coming over, sounding "just like a motor boat." "We heard the motor cut-off and every-one else flattened themselves out on the ground. I was unimpressed by the bomb, not knowing any better, and stood where I was. In a few seconds I was hurled 20 feet through the air by the explosion and then I was impressed."

Sgmn. Pearson, returned because of lowered category, has a wife and six children at Grimshaw. Sgmn. W. Yeadall is from St. Albert, and Pte. E. B. Yuill's home is in Barrhead.

No Equipment Is Offered Canada By U.S. as Yet

No surplus U.S. equipment has been offered to Canada other than under special emergency arrangements whereby the Canadian government could obtain equipment, surplus to U.S. needs, for use of Canadian contractors working on joint defence projects which had become the responsibility of the Canadian government, it was stated Wednesday afternoon by Maj.-Gen. W. W. Foster, C.M.G., D.S.O., V.D., special commissioner for defence projects in northwest Canada.

Assets of the U.S. government are in two classes, moveable and immovable, and a survey of immovables, such as permanent buildings is now proceeding.

THREE POSSIBILITIES

Movables, consisting of equipment and supplies, can either be taken back to the United States; earmarked for the Canadian government; or declared unfit for any use.

The Canadian government has nothing to do with the classification. Gen. Foster said, and is only interested in the material which the U.S. authorities indicate they desire to leave here for disposition. Upon receipt of the lists of equipment or supplies the U.S. government declares surplus and wishes to leave in Canada for disposition. Gen. Foster said that arrangements have been made for the Northwest Purchasing Limited, Edmonton, to act on behalf of the department of munitions and supply in taking title of the goods.

A representative of the War Assets Corporation, which will act as the selling agency for the dominion government, is also in Edmonton, for the purpose of facilitating action immediately by the representatives of the United States have completed their classification and can provide lists.

PARTY GOING NORTH

A party of Canadian and U.S. officials will proceed north on Monday to make a general survey of the thirty points where the United States are concentrating the surplus they wish to transfer to Canada. These points are located in conjunction with maintenance camps and as the supplies are ranged at various spots in an area of about half a million square acres, it is expected it will be some time before the transfer is completed.

Canadian officials attending the survey will be W. S. Miller of Northwest Purchasing Limited, J. B. Scott, representative of War Assets Corporation, and Major A. C. Nixon, representing Gen. Foster.

Maybe the Ogopogo Mystery Is Solved

Above is William Darby, engineer at the city power plant, displaying a 23-pound sturgeon taken the easy way. The fish Mr. Darby is so proud of, was sucked into the power plant intake Wednesday and was carried through to the filter screening where it was pulled out. Mr. Darby said it was not unusual to get sturgeon weighing up to 48 pounds through the power plant intake, and he expressed the opinion that the Ogopogo seen so often in the upper reaches of the Saskatchewan river are nothing more or less than large sturgeon sheltering near the river banks.

New Record Set By Big Airplane

A Western Air Lines C-47 Skytrain, the military version of the Douglas DC-3, has established a new record for aircraft on the Alaska run, it was announced here Thursday by L. D. Carlson, superintendent of the military cargo division of the airline.

Mr. Carlson attributed the record making loads carried by the twin-engine machine to efficient maintenance and efficient scheduling. Mr. Carlson has received a letter of commendation from Col. Harry J. Kielling, wing chief of staff. In the letter, the USAF officer said the plane, in breaking the record, has even surpassed the daily average of 15 hours which has been the goal for aircraft in the Alaskan Wing.

$733 Is Raised At Auction Sale

Total of $733 was raised at the auction sale held at the exhibition grounds on Wednesday afternoon sponsored by the Alberta Livestock Co-operative in aid of flood victims of the Pembina and Paddle river areas.

Auctioneers were Don Ball and Clyde Smith, who volunteered for the task. A wide variety of articles and animals went on the block with brisk bidding throughout and good prices obtained for what the bidders considered were good buys. About 200 persons attended.

Mrs. M. B. A. Moreau of Fort Saskatchewan donated a heater, which she bought back for $55. In the bidding she kept just ahead of all others to win back her favorite young animal. In addition, she purchased one other animal for $20. One small pig sold for $60.

Officials expressed themselves as well pleased with the results. They stated that the fund was still open and that subscriptions still were welcome.

Kiwanis Children Will Have Holiday

Children from the Kiwanis home, 120 street and 103 avenue, will enjoy a holiday at Gull Lake this summer, thanks to the benevolence of a city woman who is letting the Kiwanis Club have the use of her cottage at the lake.

This is the first time this has ever been done and it will be the first time that many of the children will have had such an opportunity to enjoy their holidays.

Thirty-six children and three or four adults will leave, by train, next Tuesday for Gull Lake.

Cyclist Receives Slight Abrasions

Joseph N. Procyk, 11116 123 street, was treated for facial abrasions at the Royal Alexandra hospital after the bicycle he had been riding at Jasper avenue and 95 street collided with an auto said by police to have been operated by Walter Dufresne, Loverpo, Sask., a visitor to the city, about 5:40 p.m. Wednesday.

Procyk indicated to officers he had not seen the car until it was directly in front of him. Dufresne said he had applied the brakes of his car but the two vehicles collided, knocking Procyk to the pavement. The driver took Procyk to hospital for treatment, and then drove him home, he told officers.

Former Stettler Man Found Dead

Andrew Berguson, 75-year-old resident of 11644 90 street, was found dead in his bed early Thursday, according to city police. Death was due to natural causes, it was stated.

Mr. Berguson resided at the home of Ray Parleman, at the above address, and came to the city from Stettler. It had been his request that when he died his body be returned to Stettler for burial, police were told.

THE QUESTION

Collaboration of the provincial government and the church and rigid enforcement of the School Act, to the rapidly increasing population in the northland was stressed by the Rev. N. Burgo-mester, pastor of the Anglican church diocese with its headquarters at Fort Chipewyan in an interview here. What is your opinion on this matter?

THE ANSWERS

E. P. HEADLEY, mechanic: Not much seems to be known about the existing situation in this case. It seems strange that under our present School Act there should be lack of enforcement. I suppose the church plays a great part in the lives and education of these people and the government has just left that in the church's hands and it has gradually grown out of proportion to the means of handling.

J. BEAUVARDE, clerk: If conditions are so bad as they appear by that statement I would say that an investigation should be made into the matter at once.

MRS. MARION ROUTHES, clerk: Perhaps the government has left the schooling of these people in the hands of the church too long without giving them much assistance. This should be brought to the attention of the government in some manner and then something definitely should be done. We do not want an ignorant and illiterate native population on our hands in the future.

Dodging Bullets on Motorcycle Proves Nerve-Wracking Experience

Dodging bullets on a motorcycle is described as "nerve wracking" by Cpl. J. C. Murray, with the Canadian Provost Corps in France. In a letter to his mother, Mrs. E. M. Murray, suite 4 Richards Block, he told how he became lost in No Man's Land, and had to dodge through a hail of bullets before making his way safely back to his station.

"My job is being responsible for convoys, escorting them to their destinations and seeing that they all get through. Some days I have a number of convoys to handle, and by oneself it is very tiring," he said. "Please don't get the idea I'm in great danger for those times haven't come yet and I don't think they will. Anyway, I'm only one in this whole war and they all take risks. The boys on the front line are the heroes, for their lives are only worth the distance of No Man's Land and a split second."

"I see things here that one can't imagine at home. As I stopped by a new Canadian graveyard I sat there on my bike and thought of their part in this struggle, and of their loved ones at home who don't know they are gone. The army boys who buried them took great care in patting the mounds smooth, and laying the sod around the mounds, and putting the white crosses at their heads."

MORE TO DO

"The time they took wasn't very long, for there were more to do."

"The German slogan is 'God be with us' but I know that God is with us. That's how I know it will be our victory, and I pray it will be very soon."

"The Canadian boys are very well liked by the French people for there were only just a few graves there were to place flowers on them every Sunday."

Concluding his letter Cpl. Murray said he had received 1,800 cigarettes, "so you see they're coming through good now."

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Being Tried for Bigamy Because of 16 Husbands

What Lured So Many Males? Millions of Dateless, Single Women Puzzled, by One's Success in Piercing Male Armor

In these days of acute shortage in the husband supply, it is interesting to read of a woman who is being tried for bigamy because she has sixteen living husbands. Putting aside for the time being the legal and moral aspects of the case, the unimpaired thoughts in the minds of the millions of dateless and unmarried women of the country will be how did she do it? What bait did she use?

Unfortunately this man-snatcher seems to have kept her secret to herself, and so we have no authentic information on how the trick was done, or how she managed to lure sixteen men (count 'em) to the altar, when so many of her sisters can't even get one to take that fatal trip with them. The cold fact leaves us guessing.

MEN'S TASTES VARY

Did she possess a beauty so great that it hypnotized men at sight? Maybe so, but beauty is in the eye of the beholder and not all men agree on what constitutes pulchritude in a female. Some like 'em tall and some like 'em short. Some are strong for living skeletons, while others prefer a good armful. Some fall for brunettes, while others can't resist a blond, either natural or synthetic.

Furthermore, while it is true that men give lip service to the worship of beauty, they seem to take little account of it when it comes to marrying, as is amply proven by the number of women wearing wedding rings whose faces could never have been their fortunes. All of us know many old maids who were celebrated beauties in their youth, which seems to prove that while looks are a great come-on in getting a girl dates, they are a washout for getting her to the altar.

Was the charm with which this siren lured sixteen men to the Marriage License Bureau vivacity? Did she have a quick wit and a nimble tongue? Was she the life of the party wherever she went? In a world filled with Dumb Dories, who give their whole time and attention to admiring themselves and blowing their own trumpets, you can see how a man might be easily captured by any astute maiden who would turn the spotlight on him occasionally and say a few kind words to him.

HUMOR NOT RELISHED

But the gay and lively method of catching a husband is not a sure-fire recipe for getting a wedding certificate, for while some men are fascinated by loud and noisy women, who are always laughing and exclaiming and jumping around like a monkey on a stick, the great majority of them are allergic to them.

Humor is not one of the qualities that men admire in women and they will go farther to dodge a wisecracking female than they would a man-eating tiger. Also, they are deeply suspicious of the woman whose laugh is hung on a hair-trigger. They are afraid she is laughing at them.

Inasmuch, however, as this woman who holds the world's record for multiple marriages does not appear to be either Miss America or Dorothy Parker, it still leaves us guessing as to what method she used in catching husbands. Did she bait her traps with flattery and tell them how big and strong and handsome they were, and ask them how they kept out of the movies? Or did she represent herself as a rich widow? Or did she weep upon their breasts and tell them how she loved them? Or did she follow the time-honored tactic of husband hunters and stalk her victim until she caught him?

We pause for a reply.

been slightly optimistic, but Kenkel played the hand with skill to make the contract. Others who tried to make four went down, while five diamonds by South was defeated only one trick.

The opening diamond lead was ruffed by declarer, and a low trump led, South dropping the nine. North won and returned another diamond. Finkel ruffed, then laid down the ace and king of hearts. When the queen dropped from the South hand, Kenkel led another heart to the nine in dummy, and when South discarded the contract was safe.

The trump finesse against the jack was taken, and thereafter declarer lost only two club tricks.

Pheasey-Jackson Nuptials Held at St. Faith's Church

Carnations, snapdragons and sweet peas decorated St. Faith's church for the marriage Wednesday at 4 p.m. of Miss Lillian Jackson, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Jackson, and Arthur Pheasey, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Pheasey, Mannville. The Rev. Lewis M. Watts performed the ceremony.

Miss Wilma Van Deelen played the wedding marches, and during the signing of the register played Because.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a pale turquoise blue crepe afternoon frock, fashioned with a bodice having a roll collar and three-quarter length sleeves. The frock was trimmed with matching colored lace. She wore a white flowered hat and carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses.

BRIDAL ATTENDANT

Attending the bride as bridesmaid was her sister, Miss Margaret Jackson, who wore a MacArthur blue crepe frock, the bodice made with ruching at the neck, and three-quarter length sleeves. Her hat and accessories were white, and she carried a bouquet of pink carnations and sweet peas.

Cousin of the bridegroom, Fred Pheasey was best man, and ushers were George Jackson and Arthur Smith, Mannville.

RECEPTION HELD

After the ceremony a reception for 40 guests was held at the Corona hotel, where the bride's table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake and decorated with pink sweet peas and carnations, and lighted with tall ivory tapers. Donald Gunn proposed the toast to the bride.

Mrs. Jackson wore a two-piece aqua green crepe dress, black and white accessories, and a corsage of American Beauty roses. Mrs. Pheasey, mother of the bridegroom, wore a MacArthur blue crepe dress, navy and white accessories, and a corsage of red roses.

Later the couple left for a honeymoon, the bride travelling in a navy suit with navy and white accessories.

Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Pheasey will make their home north of Mannville. Out-of-town guests included the bride's aunt, Mrs. R. W. Goleby, and daughter Doris, Great Falls, Mont.

work in surgery in Canada he took a year in neuro surgery at Oxford going to the Middle East with the unit of which he is now commanding officer, in 1942.

AT BATTLE LINES

The wedding took place just back of the battle lines and the ceremony was held out of doors in an avenue of mulberry trees, decorated with ribbons, with an altar covered by a canopy of flowers, set up at the end.

The bride in blue dress uniform with white veil and carrying a bouquet of bridal roses, was given away by Col. F. B. Bowman, commanding officer of No. 4 CCS.

NS Lillian Bibby, of Calgary, was bridesmaid. Major Gardner, of Edmonton, was best man.

After the ceremony a reception and luncheon the couple left by car, decorated with the conventional cans, old shoes, and "Just Married" sign for a brief honeymoon at Sorrento.

Myrtle Riley Becomes Bride

The garden at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Riley, Rosalind, was the scene for the marriage on July 23 of their daughter, Miss Zena Myrtle Riley, and FO. James Dalton Hart, RCAF, son of Mrs. W. G. Stone, of Trochu, Ont., formerly of Lashburn, Sask., and the late Mr. Hart. The Rev. E. B. Brundage of Daysland officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an afternoon frock of pastel pink with beige accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of roses.

Best man was D. D. Twomey, Camrose, brother-in-law of the bride.

After the ceremony a reception to immediate friends and relatives was held in the garden. The bride's table was set in white linen, centred with a three-tiered wedding cake, surrounded by pink tulips. Pink and white hollyhock garden flowers and pink tapers, completed the table decorations.

WEDDING TRIP

The couple left on a wedding trip to eastern Canada. For travelling the bride chose a gold and brown figured frock, brown accessories and brown top coat. They will take up residence at Middleton, Nova Scotia.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mrs. B. E. Elin, Lloydminster, Sask., Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Twomey, Camrose; Mrs. A. C. Anderson, Camrose; Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Lommes, Round Hill; Mrs. H. Ashley, Rowley, and Mrs. Brundage, Daysland.

The bride graduated from the Edmonton Normal school in 1939, and the bridegroom, who has spent two years overseas on operational duty, is now flying instructor at Greenwood, N.S.

City Girl Is Ballet Dancer

Miss Ruth Carse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Carse, of Edmonton, left four years ago to study in Toronto at the Boris Volkoff School of Ballet.

It was her ambition to become a member of the Canadian Ballet which gave its premiere performance at Massey Hall in May, 1939. The training she received at the Kinney School of Dancing and the experience of dancing in the Edmonton Civic Opera productions made it possible for this dancer to become a member of the corps de ballet in the second performance of the Canadian Ballet, December 1939.

In order to attend classes every night and with the ultimate goal in mind of becoming one of the featured dancers of this group it was necessary to take an office position. After many months of hard work on a new repertoire, Ruth received the titled roles of "Cousin" in the Strauss ballet, "Bareback Rider" in the Circus ballet and "Adagio" with Raymond Chernysh, now overseas with the Royal Canadian Signal Corps. These ballets were performed at the Royal Alexandra Theatre April 25, 26, 27, 1941.

20 PERFORMANCES

During the 1942-43 season the Canadian Ballet gave 20 performances at service camps, high schools and clubs. The climax of this season was a performance at Variety arena with the Toronto Philharmonic to a capacity audience of 7,500 people making a grand total attendance of 30,000 people for the year.

In the season of 1943-44, Boris Volkoff presented the ballet "Coppelia" at the Eaton auditorium with the leading role of "Swanilda" brilliantly and vigorously danced by Ruth Carse, ably supported by Peter Zradowsky, now in the Canadian Navy.

IN EDMONTON

At the recent Canadian Soviet Friendship Congress held in the Royal York hotel, Toronto, Mr. Volkoff's dancers performed to an enthusiastic audience. A branch of this organization has since been established in Edmonton.

Sponsored by the Ottawa Civil Service Recreational Association, the group presented three successful shows under the distinguished patronage of the charge d'affaires of the Soviet Union. The matinee performance was attended by Princess Juliana and her children.

On June 29 to a capacity audience at variety arena, "The ballet put on quite the finest performance of their career"—Roly Young, Toronto Globe and Mail.

This talented group of young dancers is working together with the idea in mind of establishing a

All Provinces Reach Limit in Paying Taxes

All Canadian provinces have about reached the limit of ability to pay taxes, Clifford A. Lee, provincial treasurer of the CCF and a party candidate in the Edmonton constituency in the provincial general election of Aug. 8, said in addressing a public meeting at St. Luke's hall, Bonnie Doon, on Wednesday night. Also addressing the meeting were three of his four running mates of the CCF party in the Edmonton constituency, Mrs. F. C. Butterworth, Jas. E. Enright and J. H. Dowler.

Mr. Lee claimed the CCF was the only party which could extend health and other public services because it was the only party which had an answer to the question of where the money was coming from. He stated the CCF would develop the natural resources of the province as a public enterprise, and use the profits to implement free health, university education, and higher pensions and mothers allowances.

SOME RESULTS

Mr. Lee said that there had been some accomplishments in Alberta during the Social Credit regime and that nobody was denying that. He said that nine years was a long time and said that the CCF did not propose to undo any real advances, but to go on from where Social Credit left off. He said the CCF would do much more for the people and at a much greater speed.

It was important to elect the CCF government to keep Alberta in line with the progressive movement which is sweeping Canada. He said the strength of the CCF, particularly in the West and in Ontario, was such for the first time the election of a people's Dominion government is a probability. Under these circumstances it would be best for the progressive people of the nation to speak with one voice instead of being divided. He suggested it would be a good idea if many Provincial governments as well as the Dominion were CCF. Alberta should no longer be an isolation province. The CCF already has 181 M.P.'s and M.L.A.'s.

HEALTH PROBLEMS

Mrs. Butterworth spoke on health problems. She said, "Alberta has taken only a nibble at this great problem." She said that the barrier to better health was the fee of the doctor, the dentist, and the hospital. She said that statistics show that Canadian health conditions are desperate. She said the CCF plan meant training hundreds of doctors after the war, at state expense, and building a new hospital.

Canadian Ballet which will be nationally recognized as an important part of the culture of Canada.

In this particular branch of the arts, few organizations realize the importance of extensive travel for the development of their own national talent.

for Alberta every week for five years.

Mr. Enright charged that the government was afraid to give the overseas soldiers, a chance to influence the kind of government they would come back to in Alberta. He said the original plan of calling a snap election was to have an excuse not to take an overseas vote. He said the plan now is to allow the soldiers to pick only three candidates out of 80. He charged that in the normal way the soldier vote in a close fight might determine the representation in a large number of seats. "This is what the government was afraid of," he said. He said they have fixed it so the soldiers cannot indicate a preference for any party.

HOUSING MATTERS

Mr. Dowler said that no government can call itself progressive with housing in the "deplorable state in which it is in this province." He said the government's record was one of nine years' abject failure in this field of "highest social importance." He said that during this war, men and materials have been found to build stores and business premises. At the same time people were living in tents on Kingsway. The government's housing plan brought out as election bait was absurd. He said it would only loan money to build one-twentieth of the houses required in the city of Edmonton alone.

Mr. Dowler said the CCF housing program was more than a scheme to loan money to build houses. It was a plan to make $1 buy one hundred cents worth of house. He said the CCF government would develop as a public enterprise timber resources and set up public agencies to distribute building materials.

VON Pre-Natal Class Will Meet on Friday

The regular meeting of the pre-natal class, conducted by the Victorian Order of Nurses will be held Friday at 2:30 p.m. in the V.W.C.A. The meeting will be held in the cafeteria instead of the club room. An invitation to attend is extended to anyone interested. Refreshments are served after the meeting.

Plane Hits Houses

KANSAS CITY, July 27 (AP)—Three crew members were killed and three injured severely yesterday when a four-engined bomber crashed into two houses and burned near Merriam, Kas. The plane ripped the peak of the roof off the home of John Bernadell, then shearing off a corner of another nearby house.

76 Scarier Fever Shows Decrease Less than 50 cases of scarier fever have been reported to the city health department during July compared with 109 in June, and 191 during the peak of the epidemic in April, it was announced Thursday by Dr. G. M. Little, medical officer of health.

He said that the disease was definitely on the wane, and with schools closed there should be a complete abatement. He pointed to the fact that there were 154 cases of the disease in May. This had dropped to 109 in June and to less than 50 this month. The indications are that by mid-August the scarier fever scourge will have ceased.

Commenting on infantile cases reported in the south of the province Dr. Little said there had been no cases so far north of Red Deer.
He warned parents to take no chances with any illness in their children that could not be explained.
Children, he said, should be watched carefully as the disease sometimes started with fever being in evidence before the symptoms of the disease were definitely disclosed.

The usual period for the appearance of this disease, Dr. Little stated, was late July or early August with the peak being reached in early September.

Last year there were a few cases in the city, all of a very mild type.
No deaths resulted from the disease here.

Weather Forecast
Is "Fair and Warm"
The temperature Thursday is somewhat higher than it has been the last few days. The Friday forecast is "fair and warm". The maximum temperature yesterday was 77 degrees, the estimated high today
80 degrees; the minimum yesterday
48 degrees, the overnight low 54 degrees.

The estimated low tonight is 55 degrees, the high tomorrow 80 degrees. The temperature at 2 p.m. was 74 degrees.

Social Credit Speaker Warns On Socialism

country. It's a little man's country.
But one man's as good as another.
And that means every man's got a chance to have some say in the running of his country's affairs.

And so, you tell me, you don't want to spend the rest of your life being pushed around. You don't want to be told what to do, or how to spend your money or anything else. You just want to be left alone.

But somehow, the fanatics of state planning won't leave you alone. You meet them everywhere and always they tell you the same story. Wheedling, whining, sniv-eling, never stopping, they beg you to let them have power.

KEEP AT YOU
"Specialize" is their cry. "Let the state own everything. Let the state run everything. Let the state boss everything. And let us boss the state."

"That's right," you say. "But are you to talk to me like this?"
Carriagen is the name. I'm just a little man, too. It's been my fortune to get around quite a bit in my time, and I've met the little men in my time in quite a number of places.

I've known him in the steel mills and in the shipyards and the factories. I've sailed with him on the seas, and pitched bundles with him on the prairies and always I've found him the same.

He doesn't ask for much. "Give me a chance to pick my job," he says. "Give me a chance to build my own home and live my life in reasonable comfort. Give me a measure of security, and a chance to get on in the world. But above all, give me freedom. I'd rather be a hungry freeman than a fat slave."

Today, you are being offered fat slavery at the price of your freedom. And it is being offered you in such a way that at times you find it hard to believe that fat slavery is as bad as it is painted.

Things are mixed up a bit.
Words are dinned in your ears from right and left. You wish someone would try to clear the air a bit, and give you a chance to sort out the words and pictures and the ideas that beat against you from all sides.

Suppose we get together and sort things out now. Let's take hold of this thing and look it over. Let's get down to rock bottom and we'll work our way up from there.

O.K. Who is the most important person in the world? Prime Minister Churchill? No. President Roosevelt? No.

All right, you say. Who is the most important person in the world?

THE ANSWER
The answer: You are the most important person in the world. Because you are an individual and you, with your family, are the basis of the nation. Without individuals and families, we just wouldn't have any nation. There just wouldn't be anybody around.

Now you see the reason for that old axiom of social organization:
The state was made to serve Man, and not Man for the state. The individual always comes first.

But humanity today has somehow got its wires crossed. In some countries, the individual doesn't come first any more, on the state matters.
In those countries, just a few years ago, men with love and persistent argument were telling the common people exactly what you are being told in many quarters today: Give up power. Let us social-ize. We'll take over everything and share it with you.

LOOK AT RICH
"Look," they used to yell. "Look at the rich man, drinking expensive wines and eating expensive meals in his club. Give us the power, and we'll provide a club for everybody."

How true those words were.
Those men got the power; and the little man got the club.
You see, it just doesn't work out for the little man when he parts with his hard-won liberties and submits to the socialist planners.

And the reason is simple. It is because man's destiny, when he knows it or not, is plotted against a course that leads to every greater security, and even greater freedom. If he flies in the face of destiny, and ceases to strive for that security and that freedom, his progress is halted for a hundred, or two hundred years.

But, sooner or later, he will seek his freedom again. Man was not born to die in chains, even of his own forging. Dictators die.
But humanity moves on. Only humanity can hold itself back.

In this province of Alberta, we have a people who came here in search of security. Behind them, in most cases, they left insecurity, restriction, state meddling, and state meddling. They came here to win for themselves complete freedom.
Freedom to think, to act. To exercise their power to choose, or refuse.

Well, you found freedom in some measure. But you did not find security. And, because you experienced insecurity and you knew that the fault lay in the workings of your economic system, you demanded a change in that system. You still had freedom to demand that much.

In 1935, you elected a government charged with the duty of making such changes as would right the wrong in our economic system.
You charged them to do it. You certainly saw that they were struggling to do this would be a long one; that there would be constitutional and legal clashes and all

Killed in Action

Lt. Howard M. Stevenson, Saskatchewan Queen's Own Rifles, who was killed in France on July 15, was the 31-year-old son of Thomas J. Stevenson, 10126 113 street. He was educated at Norwood, Oliver and McDougall High schools. In March of this year he was transferred to the British Army overseas. His wife, the former Norma DeGraves of Vancouver, and small daughter,
Patricia, reside in Vancouver.
After leaving school he was employed by James Richardson and Sons, in Edmonton, and later by the Robin Hood Flour Company in Moose Jaw, Sask., and Vancouver, B.C.

dom that has been initiated by the Social Credit administration.
The policy of the Alberta government has been one of decentralization. It is to organize the local units of government in such a manner as to better fit them for the work of conducting local affairs.
Not central government by a boss party. Not government by remote control. But government close to home. Government by the people.
HONEST POLICY

In addition to this, there is the policy of honesty in government—and that has been carried out to an extent that is inspiring to the other provincial governments in Canada. Even the socialist government in Saskatchewan rode to power largely on the promise of following the leadership of Alberta's Social Credit in a number of important fields. Now they come here to denounce us. They ask you to sabotage your good government so they can slip into power.

Consider the Social Credit government's policy in regard to health and welfare measures, labor legislation, debt adjustment, mothers' allowances, consider it in relation to agricultural extension, education, public works, natural resources, industry and finance.

Look them over. Look at the record. And feel proud that you have a government that not only can do these things efficiently, but can do them without adding a dollar to the debt of this province through nine years of administration.

Now consider the future. In the field of post-war preparation this province leads all Canada in the thoroughness with which a program of post-war reconstruction is being prepared. I know this, because for two years I have worked with your government in this vitally important field.

In the program of soldier settlement, you have one fine example of your Social Credit government's progressive policy. Your government is not planning to turn our veterans into state renters on socialized land. Nor is it planned to charge them big prices for a piece of the country they fought for.

No. The Social Credit policy is to give the returned man a piece of land. He can have a half-section of land. Three hundred and twenty acres of it—soil surveyed, in districts where a living is assured.
We feel that the soldier has earned it. And so he is free to take it, if he wants it.

HOW DOES IT SOUND?
How does that sound, Little Man?
Does it sound like a square deal to you? Well, we want to give a square deal to every man. We don't care whether you work in a packing plant, or in a department store, or drive a truck. If you're a small businessman or a market gardener, a teacher or a professional man, it's all the same to us. It's your country, and while you keep a Social Credit government, you'll get a square deal.

But we must have the help of you people. We must be assured that you are with us, heart and soul, in our efforts to make changes in our economic system that will bring you ever greater freedom and security. Because you, as the people, have the power. Mobilize that power. Transmit it through your elected government, and security with freedom, must eventually be yours.

There are five of us in Edmonton who stand for election under the Social Credit banner. My colleagues are J. B. Gillies, N. B.
James, Orvis A. Kennedy and brilliant young statesman and member, Premier Ernest Manning.

Go to the polls on August 8 determined to support us in your own order of choice. Mark your ballots 1, 2, 3, 4, 5. Tell the state socialists, through your ballot, that you don't want to be pushed around.
Tell them that democracy under Social Credit is a simple thing that doesn't need state planning and state bonanza to make it a reality.

Because democracy through Social Credit means this: That every man will be free to find his own business and, what is most important, to mind his own business.

WITH ONE VOICE
What happens when the press is taken over by the state. Nothing happens, except that henceforth the newspaper will speak with one voice—and that voice won't be yours, but the voice of the party in power.

What happens when radio is taken over by the state? Nothing, except that henceforth, the radio will speak with one voice—and that voice will not be your favorite announcer's.

You've got the idea? Well, hang on to it. Because socialism means state monopoly—and monopoly isn't any good to you.

Now let's look on the other side of the picture. Let's look at the record of government in Alberta since 1935, and note the trend toward a fuller enjoyment of freedom that has been initiated by

the Social Credit administration.
The policy of the Alberta govern-

Claims Tories Try to Create Racial Issues

OTTAWA, July 27.—(CP)—Four members of the Commons said last night that Progressive Conservative party members were attempting to stir up racial issues during debate on second reading to the family allowances bill.

Dr. Gaspard Fauteux (L.-Montreal St. Mary's) said Dr. H. R. Bruce (PC-Toronto Parkdale) was one of those who brought racial issues into the discussion. Hughes Cleaver (L.-Halton) said Dr. Bruce and Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative house leader, were attempting to sow racial discord.

QUOTES FROM SPEECH

Fred Rose (Lab-Reg.-Montreal Cartier), after quoting from parts of the speech made by Dr. Bruce Tuesday night, said it was time for people to stop speaking on sectional lines and to start speaking as Canadians.

Emmanuel d'Anjou (BP-Rimouski) said Dr. Bruce in claiming that the allowances would be paid to people who had refused to fight for their country had overlooked what Quebec was doing in the war.

The famous Royal 22nd Regiment and the Quebec Regiment were riddled while they fought in Italy and Normandy. Maj. Paul Triquet of Cabano, Que., had been awarded the Victoria Cross for his heroic deeds. A glance at casualty lists showed that French Canadians were doing their share of the fighting.

The Progressive Conservative party had not voted against the giving of $2,000,000,000 "gifts" to the United Kingdom, but had opposed the allowances on the grounds that they would benefit Quebec. Dr. Bruce had based his arguments on such grounds.

"As long as we have imperialists and fanatics like he in this country we will have difficulty in obtaining national unity," Mr. d'Anjou said. Dr. Fauteux said judgment of Quebec province should not be based on the actions of a few extremists.

All Canadians Ready to Fight Says Godbout

GRANBY, Que., July 27.—(CP)—Premier Godbout in an election campaign address here last night said there is not a Canadian in the province of Quebec who is not ready to give his life to prevent Germans from attacking his country.

"Canadians who, under a Liberal administration, went freely overseas to defend liberty, did as much—if not more—than any others to safeguard democracy," he said.

SPEAKS TO WOMEN

Speaking to the women of the audience, he said the Liberal government had given them the franchise "because we need women to direct the political life of the province so that it might be bettered and conducted in a more sound way, especially in the post-war period."

He said a part of the Bloc Populaire "and the whole of the Union Nationale" were preaching disunity and "inciting the people to revolt."

QUEBEC, July 27.—(CP)—Andre Laurendeau, Quebec leader of the Bloc Populaire party, said last night in an election campaign address that he had seen "with great pleasure the results of the recent electoral campaign in the province of Saskatchewan," where the CCF party headed by Rev. T. G. Douglas was brought to power.

"I do not wish to discuss the merits or demerits of the party which came into power in Saskatchewan but I consider it as another sign that the old Liberal and Conservative parties are doomed," Mr. Laurendeau said.

BROUGHT 'SLAVERY'

"Those parties, and I put among them the so-called Union Nationale party of Maurice Duplessis—which, as you know, is the Quebec hypocritical lining of the imperialist and capitalist Conservative party—those parties have brought us slavery and

Allied Cause Said Deserted By Argentina

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, July 27.—(AP)—The United States last night denounced Argentina for "deserting the Allied cause" and decisively rejected all suggestions that it negotiate with President Edelmirro Farrell's regime on re-opening diplomatic relations.

Instead it recommended to all united and associated nations the diplomatic isolation of Argentina.

The denunciation was issued by the state department after Secretary of State Hull had consulted for several weeks with other American governments. Copies were sent to all the American governments except Argentina.

"VIRTUAL UNANIMITY"

A department official said there was "virtual unanimity" among those governments in supporting the principles laid down by Hull for continuing non-recognition of Argentina on the ground of desertion. One or two, it was said, have not given endorsement yet but are expected to do so.

The extent of support for continued non-recognition of the revolutionary Farrell regime is regarded by Hull as of utmost importance since Farrell and his officials have hoped that if they failed to get United States recognition they would be able to persuade other nations, particularly those in southern America, to break away from the policy.

The American declaration asserted that Argentina had taken "two steps which have resulted in tremendous injury to the Allied cause."

PLEDGE VIOLATED

1.—It has deliberately violated the pledge taken (at Havana in July, 1940) jointly with its sister republics to co-operate in support of the war against the Axis powers, and in thus deserting the Allied cause has struck a powerful blow at the whole system of hemispheric co-operation.

2.—It has openly and notoriously been giving affirmative assistance to the declared enemies of the United Nations.

"The department is in possession of irrefutable evidence," the state said, "that as late as the middle of June of this year the Argentine authorities required firms friendly to the United Nations to receive bids as sub-contractors from Nazi firms on contracts calling for materials imported from the United Nations."

AID ENEMY FIRMS

"It is definitely established that during the past three months large government contracts for public works were given to firms that were either of enemy origin or actively co-operating with the enemy."

While the declaration emphasized that the present issue is over the Farrell regime, it said that for 2½ years Argentina has persisted "in an open, notorious and contrary course of action which has given constant aid and comfort to the enemies of the American republics."

Two wars within 30 years. The Bloc Populaire Canadian is against the gang of diabolical financiers who have brought us through those parties the worst kind of all dictatorships, the financial and economic dictatorship.

MONTREAL, July 27.—(CP)—English and French-speaking Canadians are against foreign wars and conscription, "although English-speaking Canadians do not proclaim it as loudly as we do," Jacques Sauriol, Bloc Populaire candidate in Maisonneuve constituency in the Aug. 8 Quebec general election, said last night in an election campaign address.

They are against "gifts of millions to England and Premier King's small family policy," he said. The truth "whether it be dangerous" must be publicly told and "law or no law, I make such statements publicly."

He said "I may be placed in a concentration camp, but 3,000,000 French-Canadians are against the same things and the minions of a rotten government will not put them in concentration camps."

He added that not only French-speaking Canadians but English-speaking Canadians as well knew that Canada can be independent "only if it breaks from England."
